Rescue Sixteen From Apparent Death In Chicago

Ten Other Workmen Lose Lives In Sewer Tunnel Disaster

HEROIC MEASURES RESULT IN RESCUE

Nine Of Those Saved Are Firemen And Seven Are Workmen

(International News Service)

CHICAGO, April 14.—Sixteen men, trapped in a gas-filled tunnel, were snatched from death today in the sanitary district sewer bore in the heart of the industrial district, where ten men had perished a few hours before.

Rescue of the sixteen, who had been given up for lost, came like the stroke of a miracle, bringing cheers from thousands congregated at the scene of the disaster. Nine of the men were firemen, seven were workmen.

Caught In Tunnel

The dead, with those believed doomed, were caught in a cloud of acrid smoke which filled the tunnel following a fire yesterday.

In many aspects, the disaster resembled a major mine catastrophe. It was an entombment of struggling, helpless humans in a death chamber far below the busy city streets.

The sixteen who cheated death did so by huddling into a protected air chamber of the tunnel. Fire Marshal Patrick Pierce led them to the chamber through safety bulkhead doors. While the little group waited there, with the air growing worse every minute, hundreds of rescue workers toiled to save their lives.

Attachment of air suction pumps eventually drew the gas and smoke from the bore leading to the exit shaft. Marshal Pierce then led the

PA NEWC OBSERVES

Street oiling is already under way in some sections of the city. Dirt and ashed streets are becoming dusty with the past few days of warm weather.

Grass and field fires were burning in all sections of Lawrence county last night, some of them of large proportions. Extreme care should be taken in starting any fires these days.

A field fire that was burning near North Mercer street and the edge of Neshannock township last night lighted up the sky for miles around.

Work of building the guard fences along the Perry highway in the eastern edge of the county is in progress. It apparently is taking an endless number of posts. In some of the sections of this highway a scene similar to those presented by the mountain highways of the state is to be seen.

Apparently the state highway department has changed the program for repaving the macadam on the Harlansburg road. The old road is being patched and repaired, with indication that it is to remain permanently this summer at least.

James McKinley, a New Castle resident who is attending school in Washington, D. C., states that the cherry blossoms have just opened in Potomac park, Washington, and will be at their best on Sunday. He says a double treat is in store for visitors at Commander Byrd's ship, the City of New York, which is anchored in Washington, and is opened for public inspection.

TWO FAMILIES MADE HOMELESS AFTER FIRE RAZES FARMHOUSE

Loss Of $6,000 Caused By Blaze In Perry Township

House Owned By Brinton Heirs—Several Buildings Saved

Neighbors for miles around worked desperately late yesterday afternoon only to see their quickly formed bucket brigade make a losing fight against flames which soon leveled the large 10-room Brinton farmhouse at Camp Run, near the Ellwood City-Zelienople road, Perry township.

The building, a frame, which had been owned by the Brinton heirs was destroyed at a loss of about $6,000, John T. Brinton of East New Castle, one of the owners, said this morning. The loss was partly covered by insurance.

Alleged Operator Of Auto Did Not Have Any License

Car Struck Carl Romeo Of Hillsville While He Was On Way To School

The case of Carl Romeo, by Rocco Romeo, his father, of Hillsville, against Sam Verterano of Hillsville in which $7,551 damages is asked for injuries sustained by Carl Romeo aged 9, who was struck by a car belonging to Vertrano, and driven by Joe Diluto, is on trial before Judge Hildebrand today.

The case is one in which Carl Romeo, started from the east side of Fox avenue, near the store of Michele Calderson, to go across to the school house where he was a pupil. When he was about the center of the street, he was struck by the machine driven by Diluto, and injured about the head and hip.

It is claimed that Diluto was in the employ of Verterano, and did not have a license to operate a car. Further, that the car was being driven at a speed of about 30 miles an hour in a school zone. The further allegation is made that the brakes on the car were defective.

Negligence of the owner of the car in permitting Diluto to operate it without a license is alleged. It is claimed that the boy is permanently injured.

Jack Dempsey Is Settling Himself For Stay In Reno

Former Champion Somewhat Perturbed By Fighting Actions Of Wife

CANNOT FILE FOR SIX WEEKS YET

Leases Palatial Home And Settles Down To Life In Famous Divorce City

(International News Service)

RENO, Nev., April 14.—In an imposing red brick mansion in Reno's most exclusive residential district, Jack Dempsey settled down today to take the "divorce cure."

His heralded "rest cure" visit to Nevada which will end in the divorce courts when he files action six weeks hence may prove a longer one than he had anticipated.

Unless he is able to persuade Estelle Taylor Dempsey to accept service or enter an appearance through attorneys here it may be necessary for him to secure service by publication which will add 80 days to his "cure" period.

Wife Plans Fight

The former heavyweight champion apparently anticipated no such complication. He was visibly perturbed by the announcement from his wife in Hollywood that she would fight his action.

Informed of Hollywood reports that he might become reconciled with his wife, Dempsey made the following statement:

"I have nothing further to say. My plans are definitely set and whatever Estelle cares to do is her own affair. It is my wish to get this thing that she forced upon me over with in the most peaceful way. I am not vindictive and bear her no malice."

Leases Palatial Home

He leased the palatial home into which he had moved today for a period of two months. Sitting atop a hill on California avenue, the large hous looks down on the Truckee river from whose swift flowing waters Dempsey hopes to pull some big trout when the fishing season opens on Wednesday.

WILL ROGERS says:

PANAMA, April 14.—I still can't locate that canal. I am beginning to believe it's a tunnel. The Pennsylvania, a big boat, is here going from Beverly Hills to New York. I have met 500 people around town and asked them if they had seen the canal and they all had the same answer, 'No.' But today is Pan-American Day. We are celebrating it by rushing two cruisers to Nicaragua. The best thing to do with these countries is to get out, let 'em alone and then sell things cheaper and better than any other nation, then we don't have to worry about relations and good will.

Marines Rushed To Aid Comrades Battling Rebels

Reinforcements Of U. S. Marines Sent To Aid Beleaguered Comrades

REPORTS VARY AS TO MARINES' FATE

(International News Service)

COLON, Panama, April 14.—Reinforcements of United States Marines and Nicaraguan National Guards rushed to Moss Farm near Puerto Cabezas today to rescue a beleagured patrol of Marines desperately fighting off a band of well armed Insurgents.

According to conflicting reports received here, the Marine detachment under Lieutenant Darrah, surrounded by Nicaraguan bandits, was wiped out after a desperate hand-to-hand encounter. However, other sources reported the Marines as still holding out.

Activities Widespread.

Definite facts were almost impossible to get as messages from Nicaragua indicated that bandit activities were becoming widespread. The cruiser Asheville is at Puerto Cabezas to reinforce the Marine forces already there.

The radio station at Bluefield stated that an escaped American warned outposts that bandits equipped with modern rifles and machine guns, and believed to be followers of Augustino Sandino, were marching against Puerto Cabezas.

The Blue Fields commissary store was looted and burned by advancing raiders, who were understood to have killed at least ten civilian employes of the Standard Fruit Company, an American concern.

Killings Unconfirmed.

The same radio station reported earlier the slaying of a total of 25

Farmer Sends Rifle Bullet Through Brain

Suffering From Ill Health James A. Marshall, 54, Ends Life At His Home

LIVING ALONE IN PERRY TWP. HOME

Faithful Coolie Dog Keeping Vigil By Body Of Master When It Is Found

Suffering from ill health, James Alfred Marshall, 54, a well known and prosperous farmer of Perry township, ended his life when he sent a bullet through his brain Monday evening. Mr. Marshall, a bachelor, lived alone. When the body was found it was guarded by a big collie dog, companion of the deceased.

Mr. Marshall had made careful preparation for his act, although the indications were that it had been suddenly conceived. He had gone to the upper floor of his home, one of the few log houses remaining in Lawrence county.

Uses Rifle.

He had taken with him a 22 calibre rifle. Seated on the edge of a bed he had removed his shoes, and the stocking of his right foot. He had then attached a string to the great toe of his right foot and the other end to the trigger of the rifle.

Them uzzle of the weapon he had placed to his forehead, firing the gun by pulling the trigger with his toe. The body fell back on the bed, where it was later found by his brother, Joseph L. Marshall, who resides near by.

Mr. Marshall summoned an undertaken and Coroner J. P. Caldwell. The body had not been touched when they arrived. Mr. Marshall told the coroner that his brother had not been in good health for some time and of late had showed signs of mental trouble. However, nothing serious was anticipated as he seemed to be able to go about his farm work.

Makes Investigation.

Mr. Marshall last saw his brother James alive about noon on Monday when James went from his home out to the mail box to get his mail. The James Marshall home can be seen from the Joseph Marshall home and as Joseph did not see James about during the afternoon he went over to the house between 5 and 6 o'clock. He found his brother lying dead across a bed in an upstairs room with a rifle lying at his feet.

As the body of his master was carried from the house to the ambulance, the big collie dog seemed to understand. He followed the stretcher closely, sniffed at the covering and peered mournfully into the ambulance. The hearts of a little group of neighbors were touched.

Of Pioneer Family.

Mr. Marshall, the deceased, belonged to one of the pioneer families of Perry township. He was born a short distance from where he died and had always lived in the neighborhood. He was known in the com-

Nicaragua Disaster Scenes Are Described By New Castle Youth

Unbelievable horrors of the great Nicaragua earthquake in which over 2,000 were killed in one of the world's greatest catastrophes are vividly described in a letter sent by a U. S. Marine, a former New Castle boy, to his mother.

The letter was received yesterday by airmail by Mrs. John Christine of Shaw street. It had been mailed by her son, Edwin, aged 24, a radio operator attached to the 17th Company, Second Brigade of American marines. The letter, dated Easter Sunday gives a description of the hardships encountered by the large native population of Managua, the center of the quake.

Edwin Christine was graduated from the local Senior high school and has a host of friends in this city. A week ago, he radioed his parents that he was well and had lived through the terror of the earthquake.

The letter follows:

U. S. Marines,
Managua, Nicaragua.
April 5, 1931.

Dear Mother:

This is Easter Sunday, but it does not mean much to us here—neither to us who are Marines and working night and day, or to the natives who are without homes or a place they can call their own.

KING ALFONSO XIII

Monarchy Ends; Spain Is Joining World Republics

King Alfonso Abdicates As Result Of Recent Elections

HOLDS OUT UNTIL ALL HOPE IS GONE

Former King And Family To Leave Madrid, Heading To Portugal

By THOMAS A. LOAYZA
International News Service Staff Correspondent

MADRID, April 14.—The forty-five year reign of King Alfonso XIII of Spain ended abruptly today when he abdicated his throne as the result of a conclusive repudiation of the monarchy in the provincial elections held throughout the country on Sunday.

Convinced at last that his was a lost cause, the monarch appended his signature to an abdication declaration prepared by Count De Romanones, one of his staunchest supporters, and Nicete Alcara Zamora, slated to become president of the proposed Spanish Republic.

The King's capitulation ended a rule which technically began from the cradle.

He withheld his abdication until no doubt remained in his mind that the provincial elections held throughout the country represented an overwhelming public repudiation of his rule.

Wave of Republicanism

The last of the Bourbon kings relinquished his throne at a moment when an unprecedented wave of Republicanism was sweeping over the country. Many large cities, notably Barcelona, Albacete and Almeria, had proclaimed a republic in force, throwing out incumbent officials and appointing republicans in their stead.

His last few minutes of kingship found republicans, flushed with their greatest victory since the short-lived republic of 1876, tearing down portraits of the monarch in Barcelona and tossing them into the streets.

The events immediately preceding Alfonso's capitulation came with machine-gun rapidity.

Fights to Last Ditch

Throughout the morning the monarch apparently remained adamant in his determination to retain his throne and fight to the last ditch for the regal power handed down to him from his ancestors.

His first change of heart followed a visit paid to the royal palace by the Count De Romanones, who assured him that no course other than abdication was open to him.

The king's abdication was absolute, ending the monarchy in Spain and dissipating the last Bourbon dynasty in Europe.

The royal family, who have been prepared for a sudden departure since yesterday, will leave Madrid

PRESIDENT HOOVER TO SUMMER IN CALIFORNIA

Will Spend Summer Months In Old Home At Palo Alto, Calif.

Scheduled To Make Number Of Speeches During Next Few Months

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, April 14.—A summer White House will be established on the Pacific coast this year for the first time in history.

President's Hoover's tentative plans for the summer call for his going to his old home in Palo Alto the latter part of June, and it is not likely Washington will see him again much before September 1. These plans, of course, are subject to change, but barring unexpected developments which would require his presence in Washington, Mr. Hoover contemplates "a real vacation."

In the next two months, Mr. Hoover has a dozen speeches to make, the most important of which are scheduled during May and early June. Next month he addresses the International Chamber of Commerce convention in Washington, and on June 15 he is due to appear in Indianapolis before a convention of Republic Editors of the state. The next day he will go to Marion, O., to dedicate the Harding Memorial, and then back-track to Springfield, Ill., to rededicate the tomb to Lincoln on June 17.

No engagements have been made for the President beyond the Springfield address, and the present expectation is that Mr. Hoover will turn westward from Springfield for California.

The Hoover home at Palo Alto, now under lease, will be vacated by the present tenants by June 1, according to the tentative plans. The intention is to use Palo Alto as a base for the several National Park trips and fishing jaunts which are under consideration.

Mr. Hoover has long desired to make an extensive tour of the National Parks. He doesn't believe the public generally appreciates what the government has done in the way of promoting recreational facilities in the western parks, and a presidential visit would call attention to the advantages of the public domain

(International News Service)

CHICAGO, April 14.—A graphic story of the heroic rescue work at the tunnel where fire broke out and entrapped a number of workmen and firemen, resulting in the death of many, was told today by Battalion Chief Tom Geary from his bed in St. Anthony's hospital.

Chief Geary and four of his men fought the blaze until they collapsed.

"The tunnel is about seventeen feet in diameter and is lined with concrete slabs," he explained. "To shape these slabs, wooden forms, two by six inches, have been fixed as a mold on the outside of the fresh concrete. Above these wooden forms is a space not more than 24 inches.

New Startling Testimony Shown In 'Girl Bazaar' Charges

"MILLION DOLLAR" DEFENSE FORMED

(International News Service)

SAN DIEGO, Calif., April 14.—Trial of Alexander Pantages, the theatrical magnate, and his four co-defendants was to continue today and provide even more sensations than developed yesterday when Pantages opened his "million dollar" defense against "girl bazaar" charges.

Hundreds of persons, anxious to hear the details of the charges facing Pantages, John P. Mills, Jesse Shreve, Olive Clark Day and William Jobelmann, were barred yesterday from Justice of the Peace A. L. Mundo's courtroom where the preliminary hearing was held.

Many Developments

Among the developments arising out of the five defendants' asserted violations of the state juvenile act—by leading young girls in "lives of dependency"—were:

1—Helen Camille Livingston, said to be 17, failed to recognize Shreve, millionaire business man, whom she accuses of treating her improperly;

2—Lydia Nitto, 17, accuser of Pantages, admitted on the witness stand she had told the Los Angeles district attorney that the showman had never mistreated her.

3—Defense and prosecution lawyers clashed when Attorney Jerry Gresler, counsel for Pantages, tried to question Miss Nitto about her past and "lucurious treatment" accorded her by the Los Angeles district attorney.

4—John P. Mills, wealthy broker, denied through his attorneys that he will turn state's evidence in a hope of immunity.

time that we had an earthquake down here that completely destroyed the whole town of Managua. A few American citizens and Marines were killed and injured, but the native population suffered horribly. Hundreds were crushed in buildings and burned to death—some they will never find. And thousands were injured—some of the most horrible sights you ever saw—legs and arms crushed off and bodies mangled. The were the most horrible sights I ever saw and don't ever care to see them again. It all happened the day after I got here and I don't know yet how I escaped being killed. Seven of us were in a front room of the Communication Building, sitting at a table and writing, when suddenly the building which was two stories high and made of stone started to come in on us. We don't know yet how we got out. But we did get out alive and with only a few minor scratches and bruises. I'll send you a picture of the building in which we were in at the time as soon as I get it developed.

Since it all happened we have been working night and day in relief work, to restore some kind of law and order in the ruined city and to keep out bandits and looters.

The natives have no homes now. The marines are feeding and sheltering them in tents until they find a place to go. Sometime I may tell you all about it, but am unable to do so now. It has been only a little over three weeks since I left Quantico, Va., and I have had almost a life-time experience since then.

I want to tell you all about my trip down here, but I'll tell you about it later. I had a lot of fun on the boat and at the ports we stopped on the way we found ourselves at Colon, Balboa and Panama, a city in the Canal Zone. We all had the time of our lives at these places.

It is horribly hot down here. The hottest weather I ever expected to be in. The rainy season starts in about two months, and it will be still hotter then—but I am gradually getting used to the heat now, and in a couple of months I won't mind it at all.

How is everything and everybody at home? I sent you a radiogram, hoping you might get it, but I couldn't be sure. We have no means of communication now only by radio and by airplane. So I have to send my letters by air. The railway has been destroyed making it necessary to send all mail by air.

address of the evening. Her subject was "Russia."

Invocation was given by Dr. Elizabeth McLaughry of New Wilmington, a member of the New Castle club. After dinner Dr. Mildred Rogers, state federation president, toastmistress of the evening, introduced the women seated at the guest table.

Many Visitors.

As they were introduced each club president in the crowd arose and several gave some brief remarks. Included among these guests were:—Miss Leona Peterson, of the Youngstown club; Miss Harriet Mook, Warren, O.; Mrs. Gladys McConnell, of Monongahela Valley; Miss Mary Harris, of McKeesport; Miss Maude Harmes, of Sharon; Dr. Elizabeth Lewis, of Grove City; Miss J. Carter, state director, of Greenville; Miss Anna Salter, of Franklin; Miss Katherine Remler, of Meadville; Miss Grace Sankey, of the New Castle Junior club; Miss Suzanne Beatty of Pittsburgh.

Dr. Rogers also introduced the chairman of the banquet, Miss Bess Gailey; the program designer, Mrs. Fenton; and Miss L. Kilchenstein, editor of The Key, official magazine of the Pennsylvania federation.

Welcome to Miss Phillips, special guests, New Castle B. P. W. club members and out-of-town club members, was given by Miss Nancy Bechtol, president of the local organization.

Mrs. Gladyse Rosenthal, a past president of the Quota club, gave two beautiful vocal solos, accompanied by Miss Helen Ewing at the piano.

Introducing the speaker and honor guest of the occasion, Dr. Rogers told a little of the great organization work done by Miss Lena Madesin Phillips who "started three years ago to materialize a vision of world peace and who by her great resource of ability, energy, strength and keen mind was able to see it through. In those three years she was greatly responsible for attaining the great step toward the goal—an international organization of business and professional women."

Tells Of Russia.

Miss Phillips, in her strong, low pitched voice, told the story of Russia. It was an address that will not be forgotten very soon. It was told clearly, interestingly, forcefully, as only Miss Phillips is able to put across ideas.

The speaker told of the great size of Russia—describing the vast timberlands, the rich farm lands, the coal and oil resources. By fast train it requires eight days to cross the country. The Volga is 25,000 miles long.

Then she told of the poverty and ignorance of the people, almost not understandable by American people. She told of the government—the system of all private property being owned by the government and the system devoted to glorifying the working class of people and giving concentrated attention on the education of children.

Miss Phillips, who traveled thru Russia last year, pointed out that many parts of the Russian governmental system was built upon sound, sensible basis. "A great and very interesting experiment," she said.

The Russian church has been divested of all social agencies and the teaching is along an anti-religious policy.

Russian people are married merely by writing their names in a book. Divorce is a little easier, as the wife may just sign her name in the divorce book. A card is sent to the divorced mate, informing him that he is single.

Whether this form of government succeeds or fails, it is bound to affect all other nations, in one way or other according to the international president. She said that other countries should study and profit by this strang and interesting experiment being tried in Russia.

Following the address Miss Phillips answered a number of questions for the banquet guests, followed by a short reception on the platform.

The five long tables and guest table were attractively decorated with tall yellow tapers, with sprigs of daisies on each. At each place was a program of green and yellow modernistic design, with Miss Phillips' photo on the cover, and songs, menu and program in the inside leaflets.

A row of flags of all nations of the world stood in front of the guest table, amidst baskets of ferns and palms.

STAR LORE

THE MOON'S RAPID JOURNEY AROUND THE HEAVENS

By Arthur DeV. Carpenter

One of the most easily observed motions among heavenly bodies is the moon's in its relation to the sun and stars, for it changes its daily position eastward about 13 degrees. When the moon is a thin crescent it appears low in the west just after sundown, but if one will watch the eastward movement of the moon with reference to a close-by star, he will see that just one evening later the moon has journeyed eastward a very perceptible distance. While the sun appears to move eastward making a whole journey around the starry universe once a year the moon completes that same journey in about 27 1-3 days.

tendant upon his decision to seek a severance of marital ties, Dempsey may within a few days organize a pack train and start for the back country of Nevada for a period of roughing it. If Mrs. Dempsey persists in her plan to fight the divorce decree, Dempsey may be denied this outing.

Dempsey Laughs

Informed of a report that Mrs. Dempsey might start a divorce action of her own in California, the "Manassa Mauler" today declared it would make no difference in his plans to seek a decree in Nevada.

"It will simply mean I have two suits on my hands instead of one. I won't enter into any long distance controversy with Estelle. What she does is her own affair."

Told that a California suit might involve tieing up his California property interests pending settlement of alimony and counsel fees, Dempsey laughed.

Plans Unsettled

Hollywood, Cal., April 14.—Future plans of Estelle Taylor, wife of Jack Dempsey, were more or less unsettled today as the actress made a general denial of statements made at Reno by her husband, who admittedly was in Nevada for the purpose of filing for a divorce.

The actress continued to say that she did not believe the statement attributed to the former heavyweight champion—but she definitely indicated that she would fight any divorce suit—"and tell plenty, if necessary," as she put it.

"I don't know what I am going to do," she said, "until I definitely get word from him as to what he plans to do. If he tells me he plans to get a divorce in Reno I shall immediately file suit here in Los Angeles."

Miss Taylor declared that she had not put her career before home life, as charged by her husband.

Loves Her Home

"Why," she said, "I have always wanted babies more than anything else in the world, and I love home.

"As for my career interfering with our domestic happiness, that is not so. I have given up dozens of engagements in order to be with Jack and have crossed the continent nine times just to be with him.

"I don't like to battle Jack Dempsey, because I have been battling for him so long. I won't fight him until I have to fight to protect my home.

"There was no talk of a separation or a divorce when we saw each other the last time. I feel if Jack was contemplating such a move he should have told me. I have never made any accusations against Jack but sometime or other the public will learn where the sportsmanship lies in this family."

Asked if she thought Jack would come back to her, Miss Taylor replied:

"After having lived with him for six years, nothing he would do would surprise me."

this evening by way of the Delicias station, apparently headed for Portugal.

Shortly after the announcement of the king's abdication was made public the republican flag was run up on the staff atop the Madrid post office.

A republican committee, headed by Nicete Alcala Zamora will take over the reins of government this evening, with Zamora acting as provisional president until elections can be held to elect a president and members of Parliament.

Rifles Are Used

MADRID, April 14—Rifles cracked in Madrid streets today as tumultous crowds prematurely celebrated the rumored flight of King Alfonso XIII, whose dynasty was believed near collapse as a rising tide of Republicanism jeopardized one of the few remaining absolute monarchies in Europe.

Although the King steadfastly maintained he would refuse to abdicate and make way for a Republic, the rumor persisted that he had taken his family and entrained for Cartagena, Southern Spain seaport.

One Seriously Injured

At least one person was seriously injured and a score of others were hurt when civil guards replied to random shots of demonstrators who stormed by the thousands through principal streets here carrying red banners and hailing the Republic.

The disorder broke out on the heels of an announcement by minister of state DeRomanones that Premier Azner and his cabinet had decided to resign in favor of a new conservative- monarchist ministry under Juan De LaVierva, present minister of public works. This action was determined upon when late returns in Sunday's municipal election indicated an even greater victory for Republicans than previously forecast.

Discuss Situation

Previous to retiring, it was assumed here that Premier Aznar reviewed the critical political developments with King Alfonso, probably with the suggestion that the opposition leaders be consulted with a view to further procedure.

The sweping victory Republicans gained at the polls intensified public feeling in all large centers to a high degree, but in Madrid it cropped out in fervent manner. Order was maintained despite the jubilant shouting and singing until after the announcement of a cabinet change precipitated more reckless outbursts. Bullets whined into the air as civil guards tried to stem the marchers.

Strike Threats Heard

Resentment sharpened the political fervor of the crowds on revelation that Senor De LaVierva was slated for the premiership. The father of the auto-gyro inventor is well known in Spain as a staunch monarchist, consequently the assumption gained immediately that he would resort to military measures and probably dictatorship to keep the throne from falling.

Threats of a general strike throughout Spain and more drastic measures circulated shortly after the imminent ministerial turnover.

The adamant attitude of the King and his supporters, it was admitted in political circles here, may precipitate unexpected events in Spain. His majesty's mayor argument lies in the fact that the municipal elections were not decisive and that the ministry must continue under a King until Parliament decides otherwise, as provided by the constitution. In that case, provincial and Parliamentary balloting must be allowed for the election of Parliament which would automatically postpone the fate of the monarchy and allow the ruler to make further preparations to face emergencies.

Active Opposition

Against such a drawn-out method it was pointed out, Republican elements were ready to offer active opposition.

King Alfonso, stunned by the apparent rejection of the monarchy by his subjects, declared that the country was merely angry at him but still monarchistic at heart.

men up to safety. He emerged hatless, coatless, grimed with smoke.

Search For Fireman

It was believed that one fireman who was in the party had collapsed just before the escape from the tunnel was affected. A search was instituted for him.

The men were so exhausted from their long entombment that they could describe their experience only sketchily.

"We were all in the tunnel behind the 'ulkhead doors," said Fireman Otis Loftus. "All of a sudden we felt the air thicken and grow dead. We knew the air was fouled and gassed, so we made a dash through the bulkhead doors and shut them. That saved us."

In addition to the ten dead and one missing, 29 other men were in critical condition in hospitals and 40 firemen were overcome in attempting rescues.

There were conflicting versions of the cause of the fire, which broke out about 6 p. m. yesterday. One widely accepted story is that a leakage of air was detected in the bore. Albert Martin, a plasterer, was sent down with a candle to repair the leak. It was believed suction at the leak whisked the candle from his hand and set fire to the sawdust.

Cleaning Offices At Court House

Offices at the court house are being given their annual house cleaning. Walls are being cleaned and the woodwork washed, while the big books which contained the county records are being given a thorough overhauling. A vacuum cleaner is being used on the books, which draws the dirt off instead of rubbing it in, as customary by the old method when rags were used. Although the vaults are supposed to be dust proof it is surprising how much dust gathers on the books. Attorneys who handle them have to wash their hands as often as twice a week.

Blessed is the hick who acquires sudden wealth; for his boorish manners, in the eyes of the world, instantly become amusing eccentricities.

Marines and National Guards in a bitter clash with Insurgents. This could not be confirmed, although the killing of Captain Harlan Pefley at Logtown was established with fair certainty.

Bombing planes were sent from Managua to drop food and ammunition to Lieutenant Darrah and his besieged men, which presumably enabled them to stand off their attackers. The number of Marines and National Guardsmen killed in the Insurgent encounters of the past several days has been estimated at 25 so far, but no confirmation could be secured on this casualty estimate.

Rush Reinforcements.

It was known that Lieutenant Darrah left with twelve National Guardsmen for Logtown Saturday and encountered bandits at two points. Approximately 125 men, armed with rifles and machine guns, ambushed the patrol at points advantageous to the attackers.

The gunboat Asheville landed twelve officers, some 75 Marines and has approximately 152 bluejackets at Puerto Cabezas.

The cruiser Memphis, previously ordered from Cuba into Nicaraguan waters, was ordered to return to Guantanamo. The reason for this change in plans was not known here.

as nothing else could. A number of the parks are within reasonably easy motoring distance from Palo Alto. Originally it had been intended that Mr. Hoover would visit the parks last summer, but the drouth and unemployment problems convinced him he should remain in Washington. Save for week-end trips to the Rapidan fishing camp he did remain in the Capital all summer.

No president has ever made an extensive visit to the Pacific Coast. In the last year of his presidency, Calvin Coolidge set up a summer White House in the Black Hills of South Dakota, but that is the farthest west any incumbent has ventured from Washington for a long stay.

Several different sets of plans have been drawn up for Mr. Hoover's consideration. One calls for his going to the coast over the northern route, and returning via the southern route. The most favored, however, is that which contemplates his pushing directly west from Springfield on June 17, and establishing a base at Palo Alto from which to make such side-trips as he may desire.

MUSIC CLUB PROGRAM PRESENTED MONDAY

One of the most interesting programs of the year was presented by the Music Club members Monday evening, and others of the city possessing talent, in the parlors of the church. Mrs. E. O. Fankhauser proved a most charming hostess, throughout the evening and she was ably assisted with the program by Michael Caruso, violinist and Samuel McCleary, baritone both who rapidly are gaining recognition in the music world.

The two numbers by the string quartette comprised of Dominic Becano, Frank Noga, Helen McEwen and Victor Rice suggested at all times the dignity of conception as well as balance of execution.

Dorothy Young played "June" by Tschaikowsy with a firm pianistic style while the stately Warriors Song served to bring forth excellent digital effects from the fingers of Ralph Davies.

Mary Moore gracefully played Valse Triste. The exception playing of Autumn by Jean Wimer pleased all. Singing style was clearly demonstrated by Mary Lou McCamic in Andante Contabele.

Dominic Becano accompanied by Elizabeth Williams revealed an aptitude for his chosen instrument playing with splendid musicianship. Sam McCleary sang with good vocal volume and tonal firmness and showed good knowledge of phrasing.

Lena Silverman revealed evidence of thoughtful and sincere preparation. The Witches Dance by MacDowell was well played by Isabel Johnson.

The Valse Ballet, a dainty waltz, played by Betty McConahy was a deep contrast to the stately Military Polanaise played by Dorothy Fisher. Miss Virginia Wimer displayed good technical ability in the Waltz by Chopin.

All were pleasantly surprised by the lovely coloratura voice of Marian Wilkison.

Seldom does one hear the balance in interpretation as shown by Frank Taylor a very talented pianist.

A young Italian tenor, Andy DiLorenzo, accompanied by Helen Johnston sang with ease, showing exceptional quality.

Michael Caruso, a violinist recently returned from study in Chicago exhibited a very competent technical skill and a tone of commendable quality. As an encore, he played a composition of his own.

All may be congratulated on the exceptional talent shown last evening.

OUR NICARAGUAN PUZZLE

WE frankly confess that we are unable to diagnose this Nicaraguan situation.

Here's what it looks like to us.

Nicaragua has an earthquake and suffers untold misery and damage.

United States Marines and United States Red Cross agencies take charge and help to maintain order and to provide sustenance for the survivors, assuming a Good Samaritan role.

And Nicaragua returns the courtesy by shooting our marines.

We give it up!

Why not bring the marines out of Nicaragua and let the country work out its own salvation?

MAY STRIKE SHORTAGE

An enthusiastic revival of horseback riding, which may become a veritable craze before the end of the year, is predicted.

This, however, may run into a serious handicap. The situation recalls an old story about an Indian brave traveling with his family from one village to another. He was astride a fine looking horse, his squaw with papoose following afoot.

"Why," queried a tenderfoot, "don't you let your wife ride?"

"Ugh," the Indian explained, "she got no horse!"

WILL GANDHI BE THE SAME IN "PANTS"?

It is credibly reported that Gandhi has decided to don trousers for his visit to London. He fears that he will suffer from the cold in his accustomed scanty garb. His decision is sensible enough. But is it wise? May not his strength go from him with his loincloth, as Samson's did with his abundant hair?

A prophet may not be without honor whatever he wears. But his customary garb remains an important part of his personality. Power as well as personality is lost when he dresses like anyone else. "Pants" are symbols of all the Mahatma abhors.

STATE MAY SUE FOR LOTTERY PRIZE

Somebody dug up a statue of 1829 which permits directors of the poor in New York state to sue any holder of a lucky ticket for his prize in a lottery. The corporation counsel of Buffalo has been asked whether the law may be invoked to claim there the $860,000 which a resident won in the recent Irish hospital sweepstakes. The official opinion will be awaited with interest. In view of the gambling mania everywhere now prevalent, a precedent may be suggested. For the rich rewards coming to a few individuals offer a shining mark to tax experts.

In fact, we are again passing through an orgy of lotteries such as marked the beginning of the last century. They become so common that legal action was sought against them. The New York law of 1829 was the forerunner of a statute which entirely prohibited them in 1833. In Pennsylvania the Quaker sentiment against games of chance was pronounced. For a time in this state the legislature granted permission upon petition in special cases to conduct a lottery for a designated charity. Pennsylvania is credited with being the first state to frown on lotteries.

There is no doubt that the lottery business today is riding to the same crisis it faced a hundred years ago. The pertinent question is whether renewed efforts at suppression will be provoked or will the states claim a "cut," as the federal treasury does by means of the income tax, despite a postal ban on using the mails for such enterprises.

PASSING OF THE PORCH

Another great American institution is passing. Once thought deathless, it is rejected by the rising generation. Only a decade ago it was indispensable to the American home but today it is wholly foreign to many homes. For centuries it was more than an institution, it was a national tradition and an honored ideal. Today it is apparently forgotten in many homes.

This tragic victim of progress is the front porch. No longer is it considered necessary in the drafting of plans for the modern home, and with the "new home-builder it seems as obsolete as the wood-shed and out-kitchen.

While the solarium and roofless plaza which grace the modern home have replaced in some fashion the old-fashioned front porch, they can never fulfill the ancient duties of the old "front porch." Once the home was judged by its veranda. Formerly it was a coveted privilege to rock in a chair on the front porch to see and be seen, but in this revolutionary of ages it is considered very bourgeois to expose one's self in such an idle mood and reposing posture to the curious crowds. The porch has been abolished, so the household can not sit out to see the world pass by on parade, and to perfect the conspiracy against the front porch high walls and hedges now prevent the "parade" from looking in.

Some through sentiment will miss the old front porch along with the hitching post, cigar store Indian, watering trough and blushing maiden, but the viewers-with-alarm with their customary pessimism will see in it a confirmation of the report that people don't build porches because the modern home is only a place to sleep in and the report that the automobile has supplanted the porch as the great American perspective and rest-resort.

Possibly "beauty expert" refers to intentions instead of results.

The World AND THE Mud Puddles

BODY BETTER—BRAIN WORSE

The average human being is sick thirty times in a lifetime, Dr. Chas. Mayo, famous surgeon of Rochester, Minn., tells us. And eighty per cent of today's ailments are of a transient nature. They run a course and vanish.

Medical science has found ways of checking the more serious diseases. But to offset the good medical science is doing us, we are placing a much greater strain upon our mentality by too fast living. The proportion of insanity is twice as great as before the motor car came in, Dr. Mayo declares.

The speed of life is too great, many fall by the wayside mentally. They just cannot keep up.

Don't Shut That Door!
If You Do, You'll Be Sorry
You'll Be Lonely

By MARSHALL MASLIN

My office is at the end of a hall that leads to other offices. People coming down the hall see right into the room where I write. Some of them come in. They pass the time of day. They sit in one of the chairs. They light cigarettes. They waste their time and some of mine.

There's a door to my office. I could shut that door. I could do my work in a much shorter time. I could do a lot of extra work, too. I could go home earlier, perhaps. Many things would be different if I had sense enough to shut that door and keep it shut.

But I don't shut it. If I shut it I'd miss a big slice of life. I wouldn't see people. They'd see it closed, they would rattle the knob. I wouldn't answer. And then I'd be all eaten up with curiosity to know what I'd missed. I'd get more work done, but I wouldn't get much Life. I'd miss good stories, I'd miss gossip and nonsense and truth. I'd run dry. I'd be forced to live on myself, like a fat map in an unpeopled desert.

What a blind idiot I'd be if I shut that door.

You can shut yourself away, too. You can say, "I don't want friends. I don't need people. They distract me. They take my attention from my work, from the great things I intend to do. I must be alone."

Don't make that mistake. Don't close that door between you and other people. If you do, you'll discover that you haven't shut them OUT—you've shut yourself IN.

I tried it a few times and learned that it Doesn't Work.

Whatever your job, whoever you are—People Are Important. You may think they are not, but you'll find that they are.

If you don't see them, you must think of them.

If you're not working for them right now, you must be working for them finally.

You can't get away from them, no matter how you try.

You mustn't shut the door, you must take life as it comes—with its tears and its laughs and its nonsense and its deep seriousness and its bright hopes and its ghastly disappointments—and if you shut that door between you and life, you'll surely be wishing, sometime, that you hadn't! You'll be wondering what you missed—and you'll know it was something you Needed.

SPEAKING OF GOOFY EHIBITS

Shops along the Rue de la Sap are featuring an "Important New Evening Handkerchief," said to have created quite a "sensation" when shown at Schmool Hont's "opening" in Paris recently.

THE FAMILY TREE

A man named Mark Linden announced several days ago that he's going to produce a show and call it "Diamond Lil's Daughter." And Mae West, who starred in the original "Diamond Lil"—the underworld drama that shocked The-Out-of-Town-Man-About-Town for 323 performances in 1928-29—and who is generally credited with writing the play, when she heard of Mr. Linden's intention said:

"Yeah-h-h-h-h?"

With a rising inflection.

She paused for a moment and a strange light filled her violet eyes—at least I think they're violet—as she added:

"Him an' who else? I own the title "Diamond Lil" and I'll never let them produce any show with these words in the title, without my consent."

When this intelligence was relayed to Brother Linden he was at luncheon. Nonchalantly dipping a pretzel into his minetrone soup he replied:

"I copyrighted the title "Diamond Lil's Daughter.' What if Mae West does own 'Diamond Lil?'. She doesn't own the whole family does she?"

More anon.

A HOMELY CRICK

Charlie Hopkins the producer says he wishes the critics or 'the policemen of the drama" as the late Jim Huneker called them, would quit tacking the word "whimsical" to A. A. Milne's plays.

Hopkins doesn't like the word "Whimsy" and A. A. Milne says the term causes him insufferable boredom.

"To resort to homely language,' declares Hopkins, "this whimsy nonsense gives Mr. Milne a crick in the neck."

And Mr. Hopkins calls that "homely language."

DAIRY OF STOMACH

10 a. m.—Oh, dear! Another warm day. Wonder if I'll be abused as I was yesterday. If I am, I am going to strike. Just disposed of a half-chewed breakfast. We ran for the train, which meant I was jiggled about and so tired that it took me twice as long to do my work. Hope she gives me another hour or two of complete rest before anything else come my way.

10:30 a. m.—Two glasses of ice water just arrived. It will take all the energy I can pump up in the next hour to warm me up to normal again.

10:50 a. m.—Half-chewed breakfast did not satisfy her and she bought some peanuts and started again.

12: noon—Peanuts have dribbled along ever since last entry. Think she has finished them, though.

12:30 p. m.—Decided she wasn't very hungry, and instead of a good, solid dinner, sent me down a cold egg nog, heavy with chocolate. Could have managed all right, if it hadn't been so cold; but makes it terribly hard to deal with.

1:10 p. m.—More ice water.

1:30 p. m.—Was mistaken about the peanuts. She found another handful in the bottom of the bag, and now I have to tend to them.

3:05 p. m.—More ice water.

3:10 p. m.—She has been lifting some heavy books and, as usual, used my muscles instead of her arm muscles, as she should have done, tired me more than digesting a six-course dinner.

3:30 p. m.—Some one has brought us a box of carmels, and she started on that!

4:30 p. m.—Have received something like a half pound of carmels since last entry. She just said, "Oh, dear! I don't feel a bit well. I know the milk in that egg nog must have been sour."

6:30 p. m.—We played a set of tennis before dinner and here I am, all tired out, and a dinner to handle.

6:50 p. m.—We were invtied out to have a soda before going home. Had a lemon phosphate and then ran for the train.

7 p. m.—Fried potatoes, cucumbers veal and canned blueberries. What do you know about that?

7:45 p. m.—We are going down for a chocolate walnut college ice.

8:20 p. m.—Got home and found someone had made some lemonade. She drank two glasses—that on top of the college ice, settles it. I strike!

8:30 p. m.—Have sent back the college ice and lemonade.

8:40 p. m.—Returned the blueberries.

8:50 p. m.—And the veal.

9:10 up. m.—She went for the doctor, Says the college ice must have had something the matter with it. Her mother says it is probably the weak stomach she inherited from her father.

9:30 p. m.—Doctor says it is just a little upset, due to the weather. Good night!

Signal Honor For Boy Hero Echoes Sentiment Of Nation

Story Of 13-Year-Old Bryan Untiedt Of Colorado Seen As Reaching Climax In Unusual Invitation To Visit Executive Mansion

The Colorado boy who has been invited to the White House because, in a school bus with a score of other children, during a blizzard, he displayed the qualities of which heroes are made, wins the plaudits of the press and President Hoover is commended for his recognition.

"So the President called the boy by long-distance telephone, congratulated him, and invited him to come to the White House as his guest," says the ALLENTOWN MORNING CALL. "It is an honor none too great for a boy so resourceful, so courageous and so self-sacrificing as Bryan Untiedt proved himself in a crisis as difficult as any that presents itself in the life of men. In the recognition every boy in the nation will take something of personal satisfaction, knowing that under similiar circumstances courage, valor and self-sacrifice on his part would be so notably rewarded."

"Bryan Untiedt has been accorded an honor given a few youngsters," remarks the WICHITA BEACON, linking the official action with the fact that "the nation pays tribute to a 13-year-old boy, hero of the grim storm in which five children, in the bus carrying a score, perished from freezing." The Beacon continues: "He will be received with the distinction accorded the great, who pay their respects to the President. He will dine at the presidential table. He will sleep in a bed in which have reposed men famous throughout the world. He will be interviewed by noted writers for the press. It will be a strange and wonderful experience for a country boy from the western plains, unaccustomed to crowds, cities or magnificent surroundings. And we are betting that Bryan will acquit himself in a manner of which we will be proud."

"The situation was bad enough by daylight," avers the SAN ANTONIO EXPRESS, "out there in the cold, white waste, the air thick with snow and the wind howling about. Then black darkness fell on those children, who never had spent a night away from their parents. (Bryan was the oldest.) The dark brought imagined fears of bears, wolves, hobgoblins and other nurserytale monsters; the very stillness was awesome. And the beleaguered children's real enemy, the icy blasts, grew more and more menacing. Bryan himself might have been 'skeered'—as many an older person would have been—but he did not show it.*Every person is a potential hero: let the occasion come and reserve, often unsuspected courage will rise to meet it. This boy suddenly was called upon to bear responsibilities beyond his years, but the very circumstances touched a hidden spring."

"Under conditions which might have wilted the nerve of many older persons, this lad of 13 kept up his own courage and did much to keep up that of his companions," states the KALAMAZOO GAZETTE, concluding that "there is slight reason to fear that Bryan will be at all 'spoiled' by this singular tribute"; that "true heroes, whatever their age, seldom are." The MILWAUKEE SENTINEL, however, with approval for the fact that "the admirable performance of this 13-year-old youngster is being recognized," warns that "it takes a strong nature to withstand too great a measure of adulation and praise," while the HAVERHILL GAZETTE believes that, after a few days, "the boy's hardest job, harder even than the action which earned him fame, will come—the job of reestablishing himself in ordinary ways."

White House recognition, in the opinion of the CONNELLSVILLE COURIER, "will be a form of honor that will be more practical and more enduring than to confer medals or other awards." The NEW BEDFORD STANDARD declares that "he merits admiration and gratitude no less than one who discovers new worlds or conquers kingdoms." The ALBANY EVENING NEWS comments: "It is small wonder that the President of the United States was moved to honor this boy. What a boy he is! A boy of whom all America is proud. He has the right stuff in him, the quality of leadership and the greater quality of self-sacrifice to duty and to others. And what a story it is, the boy in the hospital, the President of the United States calling him up by telephone and asking him to come to the White House! This story is something that makes everyone happy."

Recalling the climax of the story, the ERIE DISPATCH-HERALD gives the version: "Bryan covered them with his coats and sweater, gave them all his clothes but his overalls and his shirt. Then Bryan's father and other parents reached the snow-bound bus and Bryan said: 'I'm all right, dad. Take the other kids first. I can make it all right.' Five of the 'other kids' were frozen to death. All the rest had badly frozen arms and legs. All had pneumonia. But they were alive, and now are recovering. President Hoover read about all this. He, too, was once a farm boy. And he said: 'There's a boy worth knowing.' He made arrangements for Bryan to go to Washington as his personal guest as soon as Bryan gets out of the hospital. There he will eat with the President, talk with him, sleep in the bed where Lindbergh slept. And then he'll go back home and help plant the corn crop, help milk the cows and feed the horses. A hero? Certainly. Yet only a tousle-headed youngster with calluses on his boyish hands.

"Left in charge and told not to let any of the children go to sleep," recall the ROCHESTER TIMES-UNION, "he did his best. He slapped their hands and faces. He started boxing and wrestling matches. He sang. He was helped in all this by the girl, Clara. When their efforts began to fail, and more of the children died, he gave away his clothes, down to his underwear. Then he, too, collapsed unconscious. Thus the rescuers found them. Five were dead. It seems almost incredible that this could happen in a nation as well advanced as the United States. Yet here it is, a stark reality! The only consolation we can find is that Bryan and Clara are of the 'stuff' of which pioneers and heroes are made. They are the kind of children that make a nation great."

Just Folks

THE STATUE

We stood before a marble bust
The critics called the perfect thing
Defying time and care and rust,
Once treasured by an ancient king
A beauty and a joy forever
Which suffers pain and sorrow never.

The tranquil features never change,
The smile is frozen on the face;
In all the years I think it strange
That grief has never left one trace
Upon those cheeks or gentle pity
Made lovelier those glances pretty.

Anger the marble cannot know
For stone is heartless, dull and cold.
It smiles alike on friends and foe
Stays young the while the world grows old.
Should it become a vile man's treasurer
That face would never show displeasure.

Rather I'd know the living joy
Of eyes that weep and cheeks that fade,
The charms which time and care destroy
Than beauty so superbly made,
Excelling any marble splendor
Are living spirits warm and tender.

YOU ARE RICHER

With a clean conscience than any man is of unearned millions.
If a child trusts you than if a man owes you.
If you have the friendship of a good book than if you have the friendship of a banker.
When the world respects you than when they fear you.
When each day can be ended with prayer than when it can be ended with a dividend.
For every difficulty you have faced and vanquished.
For every wild impulse you have conquered within your own soul.

Bible Thought For Today

PRAYER—Help us, Lord to live so worthily that Thy peace and love may abide with us always.

Fruit Vegetable Diet All The Tonic Needed After Winter Months

Modern Industry Insures Supply Of Vitamins All The Year Round In Products From Southern Gardens

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

The spring has always been the appointed period for doing something definite to renew the health. The custom of giving a "spring tonic", or "sulphur and molasses" along, of course, with a good cleaning out of the intestines, is sacred by long observance.

The custom had more point in other days and other conditions of living than it has now.

It is difficult to realize how much improvement in health has resulted from modern improvements that were not primarily designed for health giving purposes at all. For instance, railroads, cold storage cars, plumbing, etc. Our grandparents mostly lived on farms. They prepared for winter by getting sewed in their underwear, stopping up all the cracks around the windows, putting in a good supply of salt meat, preserves that had all the vitamins cooked out of them, potatoes, coffee, and lard, and chopping plenty of wood. With the first blasts they shut themselves in and began to eat up their supplies. The railroad was twenty miles away over a rough dirt road, and did not bring any fresh food in any way.

By the time spring began to be expected they felt pretty droopy. They were tired of salt meat. Their gums were a little sore. They had a great deal of scruff on the skin of their hands.

When anybody asked them how they felt their regular reply was "Oh, I'll be all right as soon as I can get out and pick me a mess of greens."

This was very sound nutrition wisdom. The soreness of the gums indicated beginning scurvy from preserved and salt food. The greens had the vitamins in them which drove the scurvy away.

The value that is attached to "spring" lamb and "spring" chicken is due not entirely to the tender quality of the meat, but also to the fact that a young animal born in the spring and eating the fresh new greens and herbs of that season will have some anti-scorbutic and anti-pellagra substance in its flesh.

Modern industry, as I say, has changed all this. You will not need a spring tonic nearly as much if you have been eating some fresh oranges or other fruit all winter. Nor will the baby need any sulphur and molasses if it has been having its cod liver oil regularly. The railroad and other forms of transportation bring to our door all the products of the orchards and the gardens of the south.

Still it may be a good thing to do a little regenerating in the spring. The muscles have probably got pretty flabby. The long mild days are here again and a regular four-mile walk every day should get the cricks and the salty deposits out of the crevices of those joints. A week on green vegetables and fruits will assure you that you have replaced the vitamins that the winter fare might have omitted. A "good cleaning out" "never hurt nobody." And just for old sake's sake a bottle of sarsaparilla should prepare you for the summer sun.

Church Players To Take Part In Program On Thursday Evening

The second one act play on the program of the religious drama tournament for Thursday, April 16 at 8:15 p. m. in the senior high school auditorium will be presented by the Wesley M. E. church. The action of "Bread" takes place in the living room of a farm home at the present time. Its story is based upon the struggle of a modern farm family for economic independence and culture. Its realism is soul-stirring: its outcome is a message to all men.

Woman's Club Enlightened On Bills Before Legislature

Mrs. Motz Of Pittsburgh Speaks Before Woman's Club Monday Afternoon

Lauds The Lawrence County Representatives As To Their Stand On Bills

"You have two wonderful men representing you in Harrisburg, in the persons of George T. Weingartner and Bart E. Richards" said Mrs. Elizabeth Motz of Pittsburgh, Monday afternoon as she addressed members of the Woman's club in the parlors of the Highland Presbyterian church.

The meeting of the club was held at 2:30 with Mrs. S. W. Perry and Mrs. E. F. G. Harper as hostesses and Mrs. A. B. Street in the chair.

Future Plans

The club voted for the ruffled grouse to be designated as the state bird and also decided to aid in the hospital campaign the first week in May, when they will take over the canvassing of the second ward in behalf of the Jameson Memorial hospital; this will be in charge of the hospital committee, of which Mrs. R. K. Aiken is chairman.

April 27 will mark the date of the next meeting, which will be held in the P-O lecture room at 1:45 p. m.

Reports of the southwestern district meeting, held in Pittsburgh recently, were given by Mrs. S. E. Crawford, Mrs. W. A. Pond, Mrs. H. M. Kirk, Mrs. S. H. Rhodes and Mrs. A. B. Street, who each briefly stated the parts that had appealed to her most.

Mrs. William Cosel, chairman of the department of international relations then read a letter, which had been written by a young Filipino to a pupil at Croton avenue school, thanking him for the treasure chest he had sent last year.

Mrs. J. M. Darbaker gave an interesting account of some South American countries and referred to the new holiday, Pan American day, which is being celebrated today.

Mrs. Motz Speaks

Mrs. E. F. G. Harper then introduced Mrs. Elizabeth Motz of Pittsburgh, who was the guest speaker.

Mrs. Motz is a woman of most pleasing personality, splendid platform presence, full of wit and humor, presenting her talk on "Current Events" in a manner that kept the women at attention every minute as she handed out information on what bills are now up in the state legislature and told the women which ones they should be especially interested in.

"You are indeed fortunate to have such men as Bart Richards and Senator Weingartner represent you at Harrisburg, but keep this in mind, these men are not mind readers, and cannot do the will of the people of the county unless you keep them informed of what you want. The corporations are not a bit backward about telling the men in the legislature just what they want and then they keep on the job until they get it, and that is the trouble with the people of today, they are not alert enough to the bills that are being handled and what is done with them when they come up." Mrs. Motz went on to say that there had not been one good bill passed in the house this session and she enumerated some bills that were brought forth that were highly ludicrous and a waste of the legislator's time.

She lauded Bart Richards for his stand on the "city manager" bill and urged the women of the club to back him in this stand, as she considered it an excellent plan for cities of the third class. She also stressed the fact that the proportional representation bill should be endorsed and should be put through, as it would do away to a great extent of always having one party supreme.

Mrs. Motz stressed the fact that the women should take more interest in politics; she said it was as important to them as their home and church duties and if they ever wanted the politics of the country to become purified there was only one way to do it, and that was to take an active interest in the choice of candidates and see that every other woman does the same.

She mentioned other bills before the house that should have the attention of the representatives called to them, and as she said, "If you do not tell your Mr. Richards what you want him to help put over, how is he to know?"

She called attention to the old age pension bill, the mothers' assistance bill, the redistricting of the state, which bill was introduced by Bart Richards; the absentee voting bill, which Mr. Richards is also in favor of; the school bills; the coal and iron police bills, and the labor bills, as they affect the women's working hours and child labor.

She urged the women to get in touch with Mr. Richards on the election code bill; especially as it deals with permanent registration.

Mrs. Motz' talk was most enlightening and the women were highly interested and an open forum was held at the close of her talk, many of the women asking for information as to things politically, which they did not understand. These were answered clearly and concisely by Mrs. Motz.

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, April 14—State fire wardens and officials of the department of forests and waters today redoubled their efforts against outbreak of new forest fires and spread of minor blazes as forty fires were reported from woodlands of that state chiefly in central Pennsylvania.

Fire towers were fully manned and the forest patrol was out in force. Most of the fires reported over the week end burned out or under control, Chief Forest Fire Warden George H. Wirt, announced.

Largest fire reported was at Sterret's gap, on the Perry-Cumberland county line. The blaze destroyed two homes, two barns, about $10,000 worth of antique furniture in an old inn and burned over about a thousand acres of forest land on North Maintain. A blaze broke out almost simultaneously on South Mountain, near Carlisle and levelled about 200 acres of timber.

Ten fires were reported in the Wyoming district, none of them of major extent. All were believed under control today.

Rural Road Bill Holds Spotlight As House Meets

Administration 20,000 Miles Township Road Bill Up Today

FAIR RATE PLAN BILLS PRESENTED

Scores Of Bills Find Way Into House Hopper Monday Night

By ROBERT F. GORMAN
International News Service Staff Correspondent

HARRISBURG, April 14.—Set for a special order of business in the house for two varying dates, the administration rural road bill providing for taking over 20,000 miles of township road today held the legislative spotlight as a special order of business at noon.

The house last week decided to make the measure a special order, then set it for consideration April 20, and last night the chamber adopted another resolution which brought the bill up for final consideration today.

Three Bills Presented.

Three bills covering the administration plans for abolition of the public service commission and substitution of a fair rate board also lay before the lower chamber today, sponsored by Rep. Staudenmaier, Schuylkill. One of the measures calls for abolition of the commission, another creates the fair rate board and the third covers methods of regulating the proposed board.

Several weeks ago the administration bill on the same subject was presented by Studenmaier but was later amended to provide for appointment of the members instead of election.

Bills offered last night provide for election of members of the proposed board.

The fair rate plan was covered in three new bills because it was felt in some quarters the original measure covered more than one subject, contrary to constitutional provision.

Scores of other measures continued to flow into the house as April 22, last day for presentation of bills, neared. One by Rep. Denman Westmoreland, calls for preference for Pennsylvanians in employment on public works; one by Rep. Cordier, Lackawanna, requires operators of cabin airplanes to provide an exit in the plane and parachutes for passengers. Under terms of a bill by Rep. Burns, Philadelphia, anthracite coal products would be placed under the public service law.

Rep. Williams, Lackawanna, introduced a bill appropriating $300,000 to the department of forests and waters for relocating, deepening dredging and improving the Lackawanna river through Scranton.

Referendum Bill.

A state-wide referendum to ascertain attitude of the public mind on the Sunday blue laws is provided for in measures sponsored by Rep. Denning, Philadelphia. Under provisions of the bill, any changes recommended in the poll would be acted on by the next legislature.

Anti-blue law members joined last night to defeat a bill by Rep. Hartsock, Blair, increasing from $15 to $50 the non-resident hunters' license fee. During the blue law hearings some weeks ago, Hartsock irritated many of the liberal members by direct questions, and has been a target for them since.

Rep. Musmanno's bill providing for licensing and regulation of barbers was given a "close shave" in the house when it was called from the postponed calendar and failed to pass by a vote of 104 to 36, one vote less than a majority. Rep. Emhardt Philadelphia, moved to reconsider and on the move the bill passed, 110 to 80.

Other bills passed included one by Rep. Moore, Washington, extending provisions of the gambling act to cover possession and storage of gambling machines; the Riddle authorizing a flood survey along Turtle creek and the Turner bill for a similar survey of Darby creek and the Delaware river.

Foresee Shakeup On Capitol Hill

Many State Employes Are Speculating On Probable Fate

SEVERAL IMPORTANT POSTS TO BE FILLED

(From News Bureau)
(State Capital)

HARRISBURG, April 14—Scores of Capitol Hill employes are speculating these days on the matter of a drastic personal shakeup after adjournment of the General Assembly. Governor Pinchot weeks ago announced to job seekers that he was too busy on legislative matters to consider their applications.

Since the new administration took hold in January there have been comparatively few changes in personnel. Many employes who were on the wrong side of the fence at the primary and general elections last year, have endeavored to secure sponsors acceptable to the new regime.

At the present time there are two deputy secretaryship vacancy among the second string cabinet. Since before the Fisher administration went out the post of anthracite deputy in the Department of Mines has been vacant because of death. The other is deputy secretary of agriculture caused by the resignation of R. G. Bressler to be president of the Rhode Island Agricultural College.

Changes among the deputy secretaries of other departments are expected later. The only deputy secretary new with this administration is in the Department of Forest and Waters.

Among the rumors afloat in the capitol is that all married women without dependents are to be dropped. This is a report circulated at regular intervals. There are no orders against the employment of married women at the capitol. Every department has its quota of married women on their payrolls and in many cases their husbands also are State employes.

Poisons settling in the joints and muscles cause rheumatism. You cannot get rid of rheumatic agony till every trace of these dangerous poisons is driven out of your system. That's why external remedies and pain deadening drugs only give temporary relief.

What you need is RU-MA, the new medicine now sold by all druggists; that acts directly on the liver, kidneys and blood, and helps expel through the natural channels of elimination the dangerous poisons that cause rheumatic misery.

Place Memorial Trees At Park Location Today

Work Ushers In Summer Planting Program Of County Federation

PLANTING 45 MORE AT Y. W. C. A. CAMP

This morning the Lawrence County Federation of Women's Clubs inaugurated its summer program of planting memorial trees when a row of six of them, each honoring a noted woman of the community, was placed in the west side park plot on Greenwood avenue.

While the trees were set today, memorial exercises at which the trees will be fittingly dedicated, will be delayed until early in May.

The federation also announced today that on Wednesday its planting program would be continued at the Y. W. C. A. camp at East Brook Workmen are to set 45 new trees on the camp properties in accordance with a program laid out last year.

Garden Club Aids.

The memorial trees are being provided this year by the Lawrence County Garden club, which interests itself in all such beautification projects. The west side park trees were also furnished by that group and more will be supplied for planting at the new park location at East Washington and Chestnut streets.

The planting of these 67 trees in the local community follows the project of the Garden club in planting the "memorial roadway" along the Perry highway, only recently completed This project included a tree in honor of every Lawrence county boy who died in the World war.

It is hoped by the sponsoring organizations that each memorial tree, both those along the Perry highway and those in the west side park, may be suitably marked, designating the person whom they are intended to honor.

Worthy Program.

The tree-planting program of the federation with the Garden club's assistance, is an exceedingly ambitious one, and one which reflects upon the ladies of the Garden club a considerable amount of credit.

Mrs. James M. Smith, Sr., member of the Y. W. C. A. board of directors, representing the Federation of Women's Clubs, is arranging for the presentation of the new trees to the Y. W. C. A. camp after their planting is completed.

For several summers past the Garden club women have been following out a thorough planting program, and one which has resulted in the beautification of different plots within and outside the city The program for this summer is a more extensive one than ever before.

Prof. A. B. Davis Contest Judge

Westminster Instructor To Be Head Judge Of Mercer County Music Contest

(Special To The News)

NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., April 14.—Professor Alan B. Davis, director of the college of music at Westminster College, will be head judge of the music contest of the Mercer county high schools at the Grove City high school on Friday of this week.

Professor Davis will be assisted by Miss C. Dorothy Kirkbride, professor of piano and organ; and Eldon C. Murray, professor of violin. All three are members of the Westminster conservatory faculty.

Professor Davis, a baritone soloist, is a graduate of the Indanapolis Conservatory of Music and has studied under such well-known teachers as Oscar Seagle. Miss Kirkbride, a graduate of Westminster, spent a year in France as a student under Simon Ple and Alfred Cortot.

Mr. Murray, a graduate of the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music, has studied violin under Eugene Ysaye. All three have been on the Westminster conservatory faculty for at least two years, Professor Davis coming to New Wilmington in 1927 having four years of service.

Much has been said about the lessons learned at mothers' knee but for deep-seated impressions those learned across those same knees should not be denied their relative importance.—The Fort Worth Record-Telegram.

Medium Exposes Tricks In Spiritual Seances

* * * * * *

Nino Pecoraro, Tired of Supposed Physic Powers, Discloses Means Through Which He Gained Fame as a Medium.

BACK IN BONDS AFTER PLAYING BANJO • THE LATE SIR A. CONAN DOYLE

NEW YORK, April 14—For eleven years Nino Pecoraro did all the work and the spirits got all the credit. This has been revealed through the disclosure of the famed medium, that all his "spirit" phenomena have been produced through trickery.

The great Nino who some time ago, among many other astonishing disclosures declared that in a seance he had ascertained that Sir Arthur Conan Doyle and Houdini were together in the great beyond, even though they were so far apart in life. The creator of Sherlock Holmes and the famed magician according to Pecoraro were floating together on the planet Saturn, enjoying the extramundane spheres as only spirits can.

Now the shades of mystery are drawn aside for the first time and Nino reveals how he hoodwinked the noted Britain even in life and relates how his hands are the only "spirits" that have been performing.

Doyle was one of Nino's champions in the eleven year controversy, over the little Italian's supposed psychic powers. He first met Nino in 1922 and was greatly impressed by a seance which was really only partly successful.

Nino was bound securely to a chair and placed in a curtained cabinet. Apparatus moved weirdly about on a table just before the cabinet and mysterious noises filled the room, according to Sir Arthur's own account of the incident, but some expected phenomena didn't appear. The trouble really was that Nino was a little too tightly tied that time. Sir Arthur was much impressed, but confessed his disappointment because no spirits put in an appearance.

In a recent series of demonstrations the famed medium revealed what constitutes a spirit trick.

Bound securly with loop after loop of clothes-line-lashed to a chair, and placed in a curtained cabinet—this time, however, the lights were on, instead of as is customary in the usual seance. Presently Nino's hand, impossible to mistake, stuck out through the curtain.

Things began to happen. The hand played a tambourine, wrote "spirit messages" on a slate, waved a handkerchief, and otherwise produced phenomena which might have been really mysterious in a darkened room.

The little Italian has reproduced all his stunts in public, admitting frankly that he did them by sliding out of his bonds. Another wriggle and Pecoraro was inside the ropes again, and his mittens were on his diminutive hands.

Pecoraro tells that in all his years as one of the world's best known mediums, he has never seen a ghost neither does he believe has anyone else. However he is through with seances, and henceforth will confine himself to painting, acting and writing for his livelihood, leaving the beguiling of the credulous to others.

Dramatic Society Play Is Success

St. Mary's Little Theatre Is Scene Of Successful Presentation

St. Mary's Dramatic society last evening scored a decided success in the presentation of "Applesauce", the delightful three act comedy by Barry Conners, at St. Mary's Little Theatre, North Beaver street.

This delightful mirth producing stage production was presented by seven members of the society under the supervision of Rev. Fr. F. S Clifford, dramatic instructor of the society.

Full of laughable situations and brilliant lines, yet it had a moral objective that was brought out in a skillful manner, that left a deep impression on the audience.

To pick out any special character or performer would be unfair, as every part was taken in a finished manner and each was such as to appeal to the particular individual in the audience as the best.

The characters were Ma Robinson—Mrs. William Howley; Pa Robinson—Thomas Cunningham; Mrs. Jennie Baldwin—Harriet Goodman; Hazel Robinson—Rose McGahagan; Matt McAllister—Bernard Rogan; Bill McAllister—Francis Morrissey; Rollo Jenkins—Thomas Flanagan.

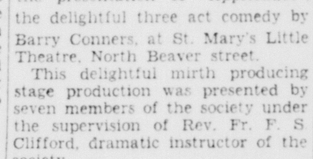

Between acts Miss Julia McCoy delighted the audience with popular song hits in a fascinating manner, while Messrs. Francis Morrissey, Bernard Rogan, Steve and Jack Griffith rendered old time quartette songs in a fine manner. The play will be repeated on Wednesday evening.

Those in charge of the production were as follows:—Executive committee—Rev. F. S. Clifford, Joseph Dagnon, Arthur M. Brown, Joseph Graham, Bradley McGonigle, Hazel Barrett and secretarial committee; Stage—Lee Stockman, John Vonderau, Steve Stanislow, Cincent Rogan; Makeup—Hazel Barrett.

Hoover Praises Red Cross Work In Emergencies

Two National Emergencies Lately Conquered By Good Work Of Red Cross

SEVEREST TESTS HAVE BEEN MADE

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, April 14—Emerging from a winter marked by two national emergencies—the drought and unemployment—and during which their work was bitterly attacked by many members of congress, those who direct the work of the Red Cross assembled here amid the sunshine and cherry blossoms today and received the praise of their chief and president of the United States.

"During this past year this great mutual institution of the whole people has been put again to severe tests," President Hoover said, "not only as to its practical ability to meet national disaster, but a test involving its whole moral and spiritual purpose. You have, under most difficult handicaps, again demonstrated that it can meet and relieve human suffering in any national disaster."

He referred indirectly to the controversy with congress regarding the attempt to force a government appropriation for drought relief work, and he put the date of the beginning of the Red Cross work as far back as last August.

Saved By Action.

"It was that far sighted action and that early action which enabled the saving of this multitude of people from infinite suffering. Unfortunately, men less familiar with the resources and the ability and the courage of the American people in mutual action under thier own Red Cross, men no doubt genuinely concerned over the growing seriousness of the situation, were skeptical of your abilities and the forces which it strength, and were insistent that the Red Cross should abandon its voluntary character, should abandon its independence and its foundations in service which are part of the spiritual life of our country, and become in effect a government bureau through federal appropriations as the source of its funds."

He said the critics had failed to take into account the fact that the Red Cross represents "a vital and precious force in our people—their ability and strength in voluntary action and their sense of service and of moral responsibility."

Momentous Decision.

Mr. Hoover declared the Red Cross sprang from the people and part of their spiritual expression.

"It was a momentous decision which confronted you, to refuse the easy course that was proposed (a congressional appropriation of $25,000,000, and it has been due to you, to your courage, your resolution and devotion that it has been possible even in time of extreme economic difficulty to prove your strength and ability to meet national emergencies, by finding from your members the financial resources on the one hand and the ability and sense of service for distribution on the other.

"If your officers had yielded on this occasion the Red Cross would have been rendered impotent in the face of every future national emergency, for it would have been inevitable to turn to the government and the taxpayer; it would have meant the destruction of the spirit of the Red Cross and it would have been the destruction of something even greater than voluntary service—it would have injured the spiritual responses of the American people. It would have been a step on the pathway of government doles."

Woman Novelist Says Many Perils Attend Too Early Marriages

FANNIE HURST

By FANNIE HURST
Famous Woman Novelist

Because the institution of marriage is the crux upon which revolves modern society, it is a subject near and dear and controversial.

Among the countless facets that offer themselves for discussion of one aspect or another of this much-mooted state of being is the angle that concerns itself with age.

What is the ideal age for marriage? Leaving aside countries and people where child marriages are practiced, what is the ideal age among the so-called highly organized portions of Europe and America?

There are those, and it is possible they constitute a majority, who advocate early marriage on the principle that the ideal period for a maid and a younth to adjust their young shoulders to matrimonial accoutrements is between 18 and 23, giving the male the few years in advance.

Youth is the time of adaptability. Better to start early in life. Enter parenthood at an age that will insure a certain amount of youth, along with one's children.

The arguments are there stacked up with what conviction they have to offer.

Granting these highly fallible points to favor of early marriage, the nays then rise in might.

Fraught With Peril

Early marriage, in the opinion of one commentator at least, is fraught with periol. It can so easily develop into a steel trap into which walk two unsuspecting pilgrims out of the woodland of youth. Two young people responding to passion before they know what passion is. Two young people caught in the immemorial lure of sex, and scaling the transient ecstacies of adolescence with a life pact.

Between what there is to be gained by early marriage and what there is to be lost, there seems little room for comparison. The odds stack up so irrevocably against the folly of 18 and 23, compared to the more mature consideration of 23 and 28: or, better still, 25 and 30.

To snip off the years of unmarried youth at 18 and 23 to practically guarantee a lifetime sense, even should the marriage prove successful of frustrated youth.

A girl who marries at 18 has missed some of the vital experiences of her youth—so has the male of 23. There they lurk, those unrealized vital experiences, in those lovely years of the late teens and early twenties. Years that carry a peculiar luminous pollen all their own. Years of exploration. Years in which the young spirit, the young mind, the young caprice, are free to roam. Years in which both the man and the maid may indulge in the significant luxury of not knowing their own minds. Years that should be free of the rigidity of marriage contract or sense of obligation. To forego them is to enter marriage with a dangerous lack of comprehension or preparation.

Skips Part of Life

The girl who marries at 18 has skipped a part of her lesson of life. She has left out some pages. Vital pages.

The youth who enters matrimony on the ecstsy of a first passion is dangerously apt to be a fool, forcing his way into a premature paradise.

Eighteen and 23. They have not the equipment. They have not thought about marriage. They have only felt about it.

Even the early marriage which endures, and there are no statistics to record the number of marriages that are really happy or that merely endure, is one in which the two participants have been cheated of the finding-out years: of an exploratory period into themselves and into life.

The married woman of 18 has eluded something precious, informative and character building. She has deliberately omitted four or five years of girlhood. She has gambled with life when by waiting she stands a chance of reasoning with it.

The successful and happly enduring marriage that takes place between a man and a maid of 18 and 23 means that the gamble has been about 100 per cent.

Premature Burdens

There is so dangerously apt to come that moment at 19 when a tired young mother, and a financially harassed young father, well may ask themselves, why, with youth in their bodies and play in their hearts, are they suddenly finding themselves saddled with premature responsibilities.

Later in life, when youth has been a little more played out, these seeming restrictions become blessed burdens and the men and women who enter later marriages know by comparison, the relative values of the play years compared with the richness of the home and family building years, and find the former waning.

The sense of having missed something in life is like a toothache of spirit and soul.

Early marriage is dangerously apt to sooner or later start that ache to jumping.

Tomorrow the argument in favor of early marriage will appear.

What do you think?

THE PARENT PROBLEM

Train Child To Isolate Self If Ill

Tot Seldom Exposed To Disease To "Get It Over"

By GARRY C. MYERS, PH. D.
Head Division Parental Education, Cleveland College, Western Reserve University.

I grew up in an isolated rural country with mountains all around us. They seem beautiful to me now; but then I supposed they were something to be despised. I used to wonder at the people and the places on the other side of them; but I am not sure I am any happier now than I was then.

We got whooping cough and chicken pox and measles and the like in that little valley, just as children elsewhere do; the only difference was that all of us expected to contract these diseases. Some mothers purposely exposed their children while young with the hope "to get it over with." Only last summer in another rural area I heard a mother say that she had done the same. I also found one highly respected family seeing their children through a siege of chicken pox, so diagnosed by the grandmother, "so there would be no quarantine." I know just how she looked at it: for so did most parents in the Little Cove where I grew up.

I remember one time how my sister was driven back by snowballs from the schoolhouse one morning when they discovered that my brother at home had measles. Though we had called a doctor then, there was no question of public health or quarantine developed. I remember how indignant all of us at home were at the way my sister had been treated. Yet they were more nearly just than our family was. They were thinking of their rights; so were we. It had not occurred to our parents that they owed it to the other children of the neighborhood to protect them from possible exposure. Of course my parents shared the common theory then that the time when such diseases were most easily passed on to others was when the patient began to "scale". As a matter of fact, we are told now that the most dangerous time is when the child is developing the contagion, particularly when the fever is running high.

Now, my father and mother were conscientious and were highly respected in the community. It was just a matter of their point of view. After a few years when the official quarantine for communicable diseases was developed, there was pretty general objection and open violation of quarantine by the best families of that valley. To this date you and I see frequent samples of this interference with "individual rights" by public officials.

My old father, now 34, and mother of 77, have entirely changed. Several years ago I heard them quietly say to a grandson with a cold: "Better not go over to play with Billy today. He might contract your cold." They are no more conscientious now, perhaps, than they were when I was a little child. Their conscientiousness has just taken a wider application. I have lately heard them talk about how most people have changed in their attitude toward quarantine, noting the extent to which troubles, diseases and deaths have been reduced because of quarantine, vaccination and toxin-anti-toxin. How lovely it is to see old folk grow and broaden in their point of view.

You and I are interested in the moral nurture of our children. We can cultivate their character in a concrete way by leading them to choose to quarantine themselves on feeling indisposed, and to stay away from their playmates. I wish school teachers, Sunday school teachers and preachers would more often encourage this mode of growing better morally and religiously. We truly are "our brother's keepers."

Industrial Board Proposal Is Made

Congressman Clyde Kelly, Proposes Board To Study Situations Of Importance

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH April 14—Appointment of a United States Industrial Board, with co-operative features to study situations of national importance, was recommended today by Congressman Clyde Kelly as an aid in solving over-production, under-consumption and unemployment problems.

Speaking at a meeting of the retail Credit's Men Association Kelly pointed out that the point has been reached where the unemployment problem must be settled with finality.

Shorter hours in industry, a method of controlling production and cooperation between industry and the government to accomplish these ends were among his recommendations.

America, he said, will have to control production by the same brain power that controls the machines. The machines, Kelly said, are rapidly eliminating the positions of workers in this country.

BUTLER, Pa., April 14.—Fire of unknown origin completely destroyed the barn and most of the outbuildings and threatened dwelling of Edward Weigle and family, two miles north of Mt. Mrs. Weigle and her children gathered the eggs in the barn shortly before the fire, and observed nothing wrong. Shortly afterward the family was eating supper, when they discovered the barn ablaze. The fire spread to the various outbuildings, including the family garage, with incredible speed.

In addition to the barn, a heifer perished in the flames, several articles of farm machinery belonging to a neighbor were destroyed and the entire contents of the structure lost, while the family automobile, was consumed with the garage.

LOOKING BACK

IN NEW CASTLE

There are few persons, if there is one living at the present time, who can remember the days, when linseed oil was one of the products manufactured in this community.

And that is because of the fact that it is 75 years, since the last of several plants that at one time manufactured that product, ceased to operate, being removed to Allegheny, now known as North Side, Pittsburgh.

The first of these plants was established here in 1841-42 by E. C. and G. O. Griswold. Their plant was located east of Washington street, near the Neshannock Creek.

About 1850 they sold out to Robert Wallace, taking a considerable part of their machinery with them to Warren, O., where they established a new mill. Mr. Wallace continued the local plant for some time.

James Hamilton started another mill in 1842-43 on the east side of the Neshannock creek, near the R. W. Cunningham Foundry, which was located on what is now South Croton avenue. He and Alexander Newell operated this plant until 1846, when J. N. and S. C. Euwer purchased a half interest. Mr. Newell retired at this time. The firm became Euwer, Hamilton & Company. This firm continued the plant until about 185- when it purchased an interest in a mill in Allegheny, now the North Side, Pittsburgh and removed most of the machinery to that place. Since that date the manufacture of linseed oil in this city has never been attempted.

Republicans Are Trying To Force King Alfonso Out

King Alfonso Holds Grimly To Throne Despite Political Setback

SITUATION TENSE THROUGHOUT SPAIN

Republicans Threaten To Use Armed Force If King Doesn't Abdicate

By THOMAS A. LOAYZA
International News Service Staff Correspondent

MADRID, April 14.—With the end of Spain's monarchy seemingly close at hand, King Alfonso XIII, Held grimly to his throne today as Republican leaders, emboldened by their success in the Provincial elections, moved swiftly toward establishment of a republic.

Unconfirmed reports reaching the capital stated that a republic had been proclaimed in the populous cities of Albacete and Almeria to the accompaniment of serious disorders and clashes with civil guards.

Villages Act

Similar action was reported taken in numerous villages throughout the Province of Albacete, where the Republicans rolled up overwhelming pluralities in the polling. Serious rioting was reported at Saragossa.

Headquarters of the Republican party in Madrid announced that similar outbreaks would take place throughout the length and breadth of the country during the next forty-eight hours, making good their threat to compose a republic by force if Alfonso persisted in his refusal to abdicate.

Meanwhile, Alfonso made one last stab at retention of his royal power, while at the same time making thorough preparations for flight in his final attempts to remain as monarch fail.

Numerous rumors are circulating as to the King's plans. One states convoy of royal automobiles was seen making its way to the French frontier with his Majesty's belongings, while another declares he will make his getaway aboard one of two British destroyers which have arrived at Seville.

Well-informed authorities point out that the Monarch's safest course would be to proceed to Seville by airplane and then take sanctuary abroad one of the destroyers. Nicete Alcala Zamora, leader of the Republicans, has promised the King and his family safe convoy out of the country, but irresponsible and inflammable elements might make the departure an exceedingly risky undertaking.

Five Members On Recreation Board

Members of the recreation board who will meet with Councilman Louis Genkinger some time this month to arrange for playground activities are Councilman Stanley Treser, A. C. Hyde, W. J. Offutt and Attorney Roy Hazen, Hyde and Hazen are school directors and Offutt is the civilian member of the board.

Bobs Are Here To Stay But Must Be 'Feminine'

CHICAGO, April 14.—This is the last word on the long-or-short-hair debate, speakers at the eighth annual Midwest beauty trade show at the Hotel Sherman promised and it is that the feminine bob is here to stay.

The modern woman is too busy for long hair, according to Richard Klein, Detroit hairdresser, and need for the hairpins in long hair with the present mode of small hats makes it impractical. He said:

"The short bob, too, is passe. It is not a hairdress, merely a haircut. The trend is toward the bob as a permanent mode of hairdress, but the demand of women is to keep it feminine."

Mr. Klein said a modern woman is an optical illusion and the hairdresser as much a magician as the stage sort.

"When you see a woman on the street you do not see her as she is," he declared, "but as she has been arranged by the beauty shop and hairdresses. The hairdresser furnishes the frame for the picture. If her face is round he gives her a horizontal wave with the main body of hair well above the ears. If a woman has a long face he waves her hair vertically with the hair low on the cheeks."

Home And Garage Saved From Fire

Grass, Brush Blazes Continue In District As Hot Sun Dries Open Fields

Scorched brush and grass on fields in rural districts of the city continued to present their usual allotment of warm weather grass fires today. Large field fires were observed throughout the county as the dry weather continued.

Central and Sixth Ward firemen checked a large grass fire on an open hillside lot on Rebecca street shortly before noon today and saved a large frame house and garage located directly in the path of advancing flames. The garage has already been attacked when firemen arrived, having been informed that the home of John Long was in danger. Firemen laid 700 feet of hose from a hydrant in Harbor street and snuffed out the fire that was threatening to destroy the garage. Fire Chief Lynn said small damage was sustained.

No. 4 firemen responded to Jackson avenue last night after a brush fire, reported by them to have been started by J. A. Price, got beyond control and the fire department was called. Buckets of water and brooms were employed to extinguish the blaze.

An excited woman's call that a "terrible fire" was endangering life and property on Rebecca street brought firemen to Rebecca street yesterday afternoon. Part of the blaze was in Union township and since grass only was afire, the flames were permitted to die out.

THE ROMANCE OF ALICE AND NICK

Alice Bewitches Nick

Young Congressman, On Voyage With Taft Party, Finds "Princess" Life Of The Party

Story No. 3

Nicholas Longworth on the links and Alice Roosevelt Longworth as a young matron.

(This is the third story of a series of six on the Romance of Alice Roosevelt and Nicholas Longworth. Preceding dispatches have told colorfully the beginning of the romance and the wooing of "Princess Alice" by "Nick.")

By ANNE M. KEEZER
Written Especially for Central Press

WASHINGTON, April 14.—When the Taft party to the Philippines left Washington, a gay group boarded the two special cars of the B. & O. for Chicago. How could it help but be gay—with the portly and jovial secretary of war, William Howard Taft, for host and its leading spirit America's "Princess Alice?"

Alice never yet had been at a party where she was not its pace setter in originality. She could drag the dullest affair to its feet and set it dancing.

And this was not a dull affair The men and women who made up its list were the pick of official and social life of the capital. Nick Longworth was along, of course.

Perfect Setting for Romance

On board the boat to Honolulu every day had a charm of its own It was summer on the blue Pacific and the elements were kind.

The light-hearted and light-footed Alice was everywhere. Moonlight nights were spent in dancing on the deck. Even Secretary Taft showed the truth of the old saw—that fat men are often the best dancers And through the sunny days, as light as thistledown, moved the lovely young girl who gave the name to Alice blue.

One day the party had a mock trial. It was a breach of promise suit, and Alice and Nick were on the jury. Afterwards Alice said she would like to serve on a real jury, but that she would always acquit a woman, for women had so many extenuating circumstances.

Alice's Quaint Party

One evening Alice announced that a kimono party was in order. They were going to visit Japan, and it was only right that they anticipate a bit. So that night quaint Japanese figures revolved in the dance under colorful Japanese lanterns.

Princess Alice was the belle of the ball. No one remembered particularly what she wore. Her costume was something she had assembled hurriedly. It was not elaborate, but as one of the women remarked, "It never mattered what Alice wore, she was always the smartest woman there. She was different in some way, and always supremely fascinating."

Nick Danced Many Times

There is no mention of what Nick wore at this Japanese dance. Somehow the imagination refuses to picture his solid jollity in the costume of the Flowery Kingdom. But he was there, and he danced many times with the bewitchingly Oriental Alice.

On the 14th of July they landed i. Honolulu, almost a month after leaving Washington, on a sultry June day. They were in another world, a romantic, beautiful world of white sand beaches, long blue rolling breakers, garlands of flowers, and soft wailing music. The party bathed and some daring souls tried to ride the surf.

In the evening they drove to the Pal, the mountain that rises back of the city. There, as the road reaches the summit, it turns sharply on the edge of a precipice that drops away a thousand feet.

A Beautiful Sight

Spread out before them were the valleys and hills of the island, groves of pineapple, and far, far away, the Pacific that washes its farther shores.

Many romantic stories are told of the Pai. One of them is that in the time of Honolulu's kings and queens two armies fought a desperate battle. At last, one side, being pushed back and back, leaped to its death from the Pai, rather than surrender. Then, led by their tireless princess, the party returned to the ship and danced far into the night, with the twinkling lights of Honlulu for an enchanted background.

Four-Door Sedan

Make yourself comfortable in Oldsmobile's deep, well-cushioned driver's seat . . . Regulate its position, backward or forward, to the exact place that suits your height . . . then step on the starter and note how the NEW CO-ORDINATED STARTER AND THROTTLE add to driving convenience by automatically opening throttle to proper starting position . . . Then drive away—operating the clutch in the usual manner, and shifting without fear of clashing . . . THE NEW SYNCRO-MESH TRANSMISSION permits you to shift smoothly and silently through all gears—from low into second, from second to high, and from high back to second, as desired . . . And while you are shifting gears, notice how swiftly and smoothly the car accelerates in its NEW QUIET SECOND GEAR, *a feature which combines flashing getaway with quietness which rivals that of high gear performance . . . DEMAND TOWNSHIP HELP SUPPORT FIRE DEPARTMENTS

WASHINGTON, Pa., April 14.—Failure of adjoining townships to provide for fire protection has reached a serious stage in parts of Washington county. With improved roads, most settlements of any size can be easily reached. Flames destroyed the home and contents and a barn on the farm of Mr. and Mrs. Batiste Anidtidi at Meadowlands.

Calls to Houston and Canonsburg departments brought no assistance at first, but Houston [illegible] second call and save adjoining structures.

The Houston and Canonsburg departments recently notified adjoining townships they must help maintain the volunteer departments to receive assistance.

Claim Salt Water Is Injuring Streets

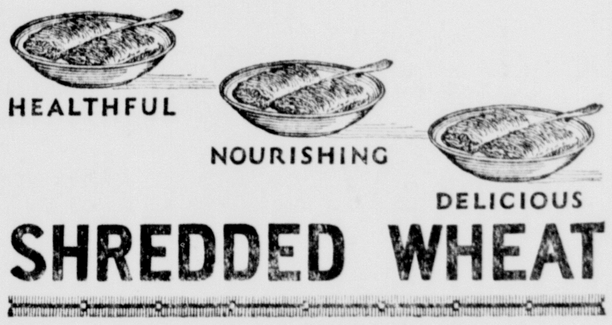

It is probable that city council soon will make a wholehearted effort to prevent the leaking of salt water on thoroughfares, which a member of council claims is partly responsible for the condition of streets in certain sections. An ordinance is on the records which prevents leaking of material which injures streets.

AGE NO BARRIER TO THIS COUPLE

SHARON, Pa., April 14—Stephen Resela, 69, a watchman at the American Sheet and Tin Plate Co. for many years, today made application through Alderman Henry Thomas for a license to wed Fanny Lorence, 65. Both have been residents of Sharon for many years and at present reside in the vicinity of Budd Ave.

The wedding will be an event of the near future.

Whereas 188,000 people in England were sent to prison in 1913 the number last year was less than 50,000.

SHREDDED WHEAT

Plans To Patch Holes In Street

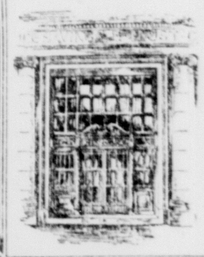

Councilman Treser stated today that the department of street employes will repatch the holes in Jefferson street. The thoroughfare was resurfaced. It is said that about one inch was placed on the old brick and in some places the resurfacing material has been worn away.

"City To Resurface Cedar Street," Treser

"Cedar street will be resurfaced this summer" said Councilman Treser today when asked when the city would make the improvement.

Several years ago the Pennsylvania-Ohio railway repaved their part of the thoroughfare but the city failed to do its share of the program.

Sob-Sister Novel Written By Kin Of New Castleites

The trials and tribulations of a sob-sister on a great metropolitan daily, written so pleasingly in "Life Comes to Judith", a novel just off the press, form some actual experiences of Antoinette Spitzer, the authoress, who is related by a recent marriage to several local residents.

Antoinette Spitzer is Mrs. A. Winick, wife of Dr. Winick of Brooklyn, who has been in New Castle many times, is well known here and is related to Philip Winick, 410 Lyndal street, Ben Winick and Harry Fisher of 407 Pearson street, all uncles.

Speaking of "Life Comes to Judith", Dora Winick, daughter of Philip Winick, said:

"I have never seen my distinguished cousin, but her book is very interesting."

The author, only 24 years of age, has been a telephone operator, a dress and cloak model, somebody's stenographer and a reporter with several years of by-line experience on the New York American. Antoinette Spitzer considers herself a New Yorker, but admits Brooklyn her place of birth.

Aside from "Life Comes to Judith" she has published only one short story and some adolescent poetry.

Central Church Has Business Meeting

Annual Reports Of Various Departments Show Church To Be In Good Condition

Members of the Central Presbyterian church met Monday evening for the annual congregational meeting to sum up the affairs for the past year, elect trustees and elders and plan for the future of the church.

George E. Lyon presided at the meeting and the reports of the various societies and departments of the church were heard, each reporting all obligations had been fulfilled for the past year, and a substantial balance in the treasury. Inasmuch as the depression of the past year has affected the churches, the reports were most gratifying.

The trustees chosen were L. A. Campbell, J. N. McCandless, Lewis McClung, A. S. Leslie. The music committee named includes Sarah Rice, John Love, Allison Leslie, J. G. Leslie and Mrs. George W. Conway.

Dr. C. B. Wingerd, pastor of the church, at this point, took his place as moderator and proceeded with the election of elders.

The elders selected were M. L. Forney, G. L. Kelso, Charles Bright, W. W. Wallace, J. G. Leslie and John Love. The deacons, Mrs. Jessie Camblin and Wilson Carson, were re-elected.

Township Roads Measure Passed By House Today

Without Dissenting Vote House Passes Administration Road Bill

FIRST BIG PET OF GOVERNOR'S

State Will Take Over 22,000 Miles Of Township Roads For Development

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, April 14.—Without a dissenting vote, the house today passed the administration bill to take over 20,000 miles of township roads for state maintenance and development.

It was the first of the "big" Pinchot bills to receive final action by the lower chamber.

The bill was called on a special order shortly after the house met and debate on it began at once. Rep. Turner, Delaware, took the floor to announce he would vote for the bill although not favoring passage of legislation on which data was not available.

Turner slapped at the statement furnished the house by the state highway department, which failed to set forth amounts of money available for road-building purposes terming the statement "an insult to the intelligence" of the legislature.

The Delaware member took sharp exception to the plans of road construction tried by the state and abandoned and predicted another change in plan will have to be adopted within five years. He declared also roads provided for in the bill constituted only about 25 per cent of all in the state and that residents of other districts will soon be clamoring for action on local roads, leading eventually to state maintenance of all roads.

Rep. Bidelspacher, Lycoming, sponsor of the measure, explained its provisions and urged overwhelming passage. Approval of the bill in the house had long been conceded by all factions.

TWO FAMILIES MADE HOMELESS AFTER FIRE

Only the energy of the fire fighters saved another home, a large barn and several sheds on the 275-acre farm.

Fire is believed to have started at about 3 p. m. yesterday when the men folk were at work and while Mrs. Brewster and Mrs. Smith were in the farmhouse. A spark from the chimney is believed to have been the cause.

Mrs. Brewster, who discovered the smoke hurried outside and rang the dinner bell to summon the men. A short time later the rural telephone subscribers in the district were called to the farm to help fight the fire which by that time was beginning to make rapid progress.

Within a short time after smoke had been found, the Steslers, Wrights and other nearby farming people had arrived to cope with the flames. Most of the furniture of the Brewsters and Smiths was saved.

The firefighters quickly checked the progress of the flames on the nearby buildings and the large barn was saved. A wagon shed was fired several times but the fire in each instance was snuffed out. A four-room house nearby was also saved.

The success of the farmers in saving the other buildings was due to the wind which was blowing in a favorable direction.

Autos Damaged In Street Accidents

Occupants Of Cars Are Fortunate Enough To Escape Injury

George Rogers Jr., of 1110 Delaware avenue, reported to the police Monday that he was enroute south on Highland avenue at West Moody avenue, as Mrs. John B. Offutt, 225 Leasure avenue, enroute west on Moody avenue, turned to the left to go south on Highland avenue.

In making the turn, Mrs. Offutt had to go to the street car tracks to avoid a machine parked on the right side of Highland avenue. There was a machine coming north on Highland avenue. These conditions made it impossible for Mr. Rogers to pass the Offutt machine.

He applied the brakes, but he was too close and his car struck the Offutt machine. Some damage was done. Fortunately none of the occupants of the cars were injured.

David Vago, 613 Allen street, had his machine in front of the East Washington street store of the Isaly company, when a truck bearing Ohio license T34-784 backed into and damaged his machine.

Heflin's Fate In Foe's Hands

Fate Of Contest Filed By J. Thomas Heflin In Hands Of Conservatives

FORUM HEARING BEING PLANNED

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, April 14.—By a queer quirk of political fortune the fate of the contest filed by J. Thomas Heflin, militant Alabama Democrat, against Senator-Elect John H. Bankhead rested today in the hands of the conservative Republican leadership which he fought throughout his 26 years in Congress.

At the series of preliminary hearings held by the Senate elections sub-committee it became increasingly evident Heflin will have no outspoken champion of his cause from the Democratic ranks of the Senate. If he is to have a "leader" battling to seat him for another six-year term, it will be a Republican and an old guard Republican.

This unusual situation developed because the Democrats naturally wish to heal the wounds of the 1928 campaign in which the Democrats lost four southern and all border states. The Heflin contest will tend to revive that historical feud, since he was barred from the Alabama primary because of his 1928 bolt against Alfred E. Smith and has charged that Smith's friends "defrauded" him out of the subsequent election when he ran as an independent against Bankhead, regular Democratic nominee.

To Be Given Forum

Heflin will be given a forum in which to air his charges against the friends of Smith—just at a time when the Democrats are seeking harmony.

Then, there exists the bare possibility that Heflin will prove he was legally elected over Bankhead. To do so he must gain 50,000 votes in the recount, already ordered by the sub-committee, because that was Bankhead's majority in the official returns.

Some of the Republican leaders of the Senate feel Heflin lost many votes by political manipulation, but few believe he can overcome the 50,000 Bankhead lead. The evidence already gathered by Senate investigators revealed that ballot boxes were destroyed in three counties in which Heflin charged fraud, while the ballot boxes had been open in a score of other counties in which he charged irregularities. The Bankhead forces explained that sheriffs had destroyed the lost boxes by error and that the others were opened because of local contests.

Texas Guinan Will Head American Caravan Of Girl Cowpunchers

By CROSWELL BOWEN, JR.
International News Service Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, April 14—Texas Guinan is going to invade Europe this Spring with an American caravan consisting of 33 follies beauties, covered wagons, jazz band, male comedians, press agents, managers, an Indian girl named "Molly the Spotted Elk" 350 cow-girl outfits including sombreros, chaps and pearl handled six-shooters and a white saddle horse.

La Guinan, queen of America's night clubs is sailing on May 22 on the Paris, she has announced today through her manager and representative, John Stein.

She will begin her trek across the old world at the Club Florida in the Montmartre, Paris. Western frontier dance halls and speakeasies will be opened in London, Berlin, Vienna and Copenhagen. U. S. Federal raids on the speakeasies will be staged by her. She said to let the Europeans know what America is like and make American tourists feel at home.

When she lands in Europe, she says, she will cease to be the rowdy queen of the night clubs and resume her old role of queen of the Western world. She will dress only in cow-girl costumes, carry six-shooters and ride her white horse using a real Western saddle. The rest of her entourage will use the covered wagons.

Dr. Bennett Speaks Before Local Lions

"Australian Government" Is Topic Of His Scholarly Noon-Hour Message

Australia's government policies and their general affect on the country were interestingly reviewed by Dr. G. S. Bennett, pastor of the First Christian church, at the Lions club meeting in the Elks club this afternoon.

"Australian Government" was the subject of Dr. Bennett's complete and scholarly discourse. He told of the three political parties which exist, the liberals, the conservatives and the labor group, declaring that from the time when the Australian government was formed the labor element has held sway. The national laws of the country were also discussed.

Dr. Bennett, a native of Australia, has made it his duty to keep constantly informed as to happenings in the country, and today's message enlightened those who heard him on the very latest political developments.

The clergyman's address, given after the club's regular weekly luncheon, was the second he has delivered to the Lions on Australia. Dr. Bennett is sky pilot of the club.

The case was one involving an interpleader which had been taken out following a sale of personal property by the sheriff on the Mike Saldutti farm in Hickory township. Shapiro, a real estate man of Pittsburgh, claimed he had $500 for 32 loads of hay which had been sold and as a result of the verdict will lose his money.

Pinchot Scores Senate Probers Draft Proposal

Reported Recommendation By Senate Committee Scorned By Governor

SUPERIOR COURT BECOMES INVOLVED

(BULLETIN)

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, April 14.—Basing his statement on rumors which have emanated from behind the closed doors of the senate judiciary general committee, Governor Gifford Pinchot today criticized sharply the reported plan to have members of the public service commission appointed by the superior court.

"The reason alleged for this recommendation is said to have been to take the commission out of politics," the governor said. "As a matter of fact, it would not only leave the commission in politics but draft the superior court in with it. Nothing could be worse."

Rumors Spread.

Whether the committee's report contains the recommendation which the governor attacked could not be learned but rumors persisted that it did. The report of the committee will not be presented until late today or tomorrow. The subject was not discussed, members said, at the meeting of the judiciary general committee this morning. Instead it will be taken up at an afternoon session. In that case the report will be presented either at a session tonight or tomorrow.

Not only in his prepared statement but in conversation with newspapermen the governor expresses his jubilance at the reported recommendation that the present commission be removed entirely.

Demands Backed Up.

"What better testimony could there be to the position that I have taken right along than to have the hand picked senate investigating committee back up my contention that the present public service commission is not fit to hold office?" the governor asked.

"And this was the committee whose original purpose was to show that I had been abusing the public service commission and the public utilities without rhyme or reason," the governor continued. "Evidently the persuasive power of facts and the voices of the folks back home are having their proper effect.

"But backing up my demand for the abolition of the public service commission isn't everything the majority of the investigating committee did. Having made that highly satisfactory contribution to my war against gouging public utilities, it proceeded (again according to the papers) to recommend that the new commission shall be appointed by the superior court."

Comment Refused.

The governor then went on to attack that provision, ending by asserting that "nothing could be worse" than such a plan.

Committee members refused to comment on the governor's attack pending completion and submission of the reoprt.

Mrs. George Dibble Speaks This Evening

Musical Program Will Precede Presentation Of Sermon In Epworth Church

"The Master Passion" is the subject of the message to be given by Mrs. George Dibble at the Epworth M. E. church tonight. Mrs. Dibble brought two fine sermons on Sunday. She is a speaker of great appeal, preaching the old-time gospel story in a simple yet straight-forward and convincing style. Mr. Dibble has promised to sing as his special solo the story of the "Prodigal Son". He and Mr. Mustaine will conduct the usual song service and present a musical program that will be a fitting prelude to the message.

Last night Mr. Dibble and Mr. Mustaine brought a whole evening of music. Mr. Dibble sang several of the older sacred numbers which have been so popular. Toward the last of the program, he asked his audience to request numbers of him and they kept him busy for quite some time filling them. One of his most popular solos which he has recorded is "When they ring those Golden Bells". His rendition of this number was very fine and gave it a new appeal. Mr. Mustaine played his own arrangement of that well-known hymn, "When the Roll Is Called Up Yonder".

Meetings continue each night this week at 7:30.

COMRADE BELL EXPRESSES HIS APPRECIATION

Was Remembered By Many Of His Friends Here On His 89th Birthday

Samuel W. Bell, former sheriff and well known resident of this city, who served his country during the dark days of the cival war, and who last June attended the state encampment of the G. A. R. held here and was accorded unusual honors during his visit here, celebrated his eighty-ninth birthday recently at Hotel St. James, San Diego, California, where he has made his home for some years.

Mention of the fact that he was about to celebrate his eighty-ninth birthday was made in The News, with the result that he received many birthday cards and other remembrances from friends here.

He was deeply appreciative of the courtesies extended him by the local people as well as his friends in California and in a letter to Fred L. Rentz expresses this appreciation as follows:

"I wish through The News to express my thanks for the many birthday remembrances I received. I have now passed another milestone. It is not probable that I will ever visit New Castle again, but who can tell. It is a sweet remembrance, how kindly I was treated on my visit to my old home.

"I have not been very well this winter but I am still able to go. It is almost a year since I was with you. We have had a long spell of lovely weather here. San Diego is holding its own as well as could be expected through the hard times.

"I cannot find language to express my gratitude for what my friends did for me. The Pennsylvania society is still flourishing. Now if I am not permitted to meet you on this side of the divide, I will bid you all an affectionate farewell."

MERCHANTS CONSIDER PROBLEM OF PARKING

ELLWOOD CITY, April 14.—In order to study parking conditions in the business district and recommend legislation for regulation of time limits, a committee of three members of the Merchants Division was appointed at their meeting yesterday which was held at the Chamber of Commerce offices.

Merchants representing every line of business were present at the discussion. It was stated that complaints had often been heard from shoppers that they could not find space to park their cars because parking spaces were occupied by cars for all day parking.

The committee consisting of A. E. Conner, W. C. Martin and Ralph Blose will confer with the street committee of council and will also attempt to secure the suggestions of business houses. After a thorough study of the problem the committee will present recommendations to the Merchants Division.

It was also decided to request council that waste paper containers be placed at suitable intervals for the disposal of scrap paper which is now thrown on the sidewalks and in the streets.

Foremen's Club Hears Of Safety

Red Cross Representatives Gives Valuable Points On Care Of Injured

LARGE TURNOUT AT SHELBY ROOMS

ELLWOOD CITY, April 14.—One of the most interesting meetings of the year was held by the Foremen's club of the National Tube company last night in the Shelby auditorium. There was a splendid turnout of members.

The events of the evening were inaugurated by a few selections by the Boys' Home and Farm school representatives of Zelienople. Business matters were transacted and important announcements made. Then J. W. Offutt, general superintendent of the company, gave a few remarks.

The next event of the evening was some clever magic tricks by Earle K. Herbert, scout executive, which were elusive and humorous.

The chief speaker of the evening was Captain Herbert Young, field representative of the American Red Cross, who delivered an address on "Safety and First Aid". Mr. Young's address was very instructive and beneficial and the club showed great interest in the proceedings. The address was featured by demonstrations. He gave three valuable rules concerning swimming: learn to swim, don't swim alone, and learn the release holds and carries. But with these one must always use intelligence and know when it is safe to approach a victim larger than yourself. The knowledge of the prone pressure artificial respiration and the handling of cramps is necessary, Mr. Young explained.

The speaker pointed out in our country that 95,000 people were killed because of the lack of first aid knowledge. He encouraged the use of the safety devices provided in the mills. Then he gave three rules which must be carried out in an accident. The victim must not be moved. Bring aid to him. Know what to do, for the average doctor does not arrive soon enough. A person must have intelligent care of minor injuries. Mr. Young pointed out that any break of the skin is dangerous. He strongly suggested that the wound must be permitted to bleed for a while if a cut. Mr. Young explained how to rip a shirt for bandages in an emergency case. Then he pointed out when to raise and lower the head. When the face of the victim is red the head must be raised and when white lower it.

Another important factor is knowing how to control bleeding for many a person dies of bleeding on the way to a hospital. When notifying the doctor of an accident tell him where the patient is, what is wrong with him and what you are doing to relieve him. Also the speaker stressed that the patient must be kept in a good mental condition as well as physically.

Following the address the members adjourned for a social hour in the club rooms. It was announced that the next meeting of the club will take place on the second Monday of May.

Clyde B. Houk, president of the club, was the presiding officer on the occasion.

Young Admirer

Although Mayor Anton J. ELLWOOD CITY, April 14.—The Dorcas class of the First Baptist church held their regular meeting in the class rooms of the church last night.

ELLWOOD CITY, April 14.—The board of education will hold their regular meeting Wednesday evening in the Lincoln high school and will discuss some important matters.

MORAVIA STOP

The Wednesday evening prayer meeting services of the Harmony Baptist church are well attended and are increasing in interest. This week's meeting is a biographical meeting based upon the life and writings of John the Apostle. There will be two topics for general discussion; namely: "What is recorded in John's gospel that prove that Jesus is the Son of God?" and What motive prompted John to write the Gospel of John; his three epistles; and the book of Revelations?".

All are cordially invited to attend this helpful service.

A rare treat is in store for all members and friends of the Harmony Baptist church. On Friday evening of this week Miss Goldie Bailey of the Women's Home Mission Society of the Northern Baptist Convention, who is connected with the Baptist Orphanage at Kodiak, Alaska, will be present and give an interesting message and account of her work on that field.

The B. Y. P. U. Society of the Harmony Baptist church will hold their regular monthly business meeting on Thursday evening of this week in the basement of the church.

Baseball Teams Open 1931 Season Today

"Play Ball" Is Heard In Major League Grounds

Sixteen Teams In Two Major Leagues Shove Off For 1931 Season

WEATHER IS GOOD ON OPENING DAY

By COPELAND C. BURG
International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, April 14.—Baseball today takes its annual bumper crop of grandmothers but somehow we can't get excited about the sudden collapse of office boy relatives. Instead, all our white carnations and kind thoughts go to the little army of valiant athletes who do or die this afternoon—those bright green rookies who are up for their first crack at the big show.

Fans Like To "Razz"

"Play Ball" no doubt means a lot to many folks but this afternoon's gurgling by the umpires brings the red-necked recruits face to face with life's destiny. Nervous as a glen of quaking asps they are too, and naturally, for they know full well that one bad bobble is a five-alarm signal for the razzing fans to hop into their saddles.

And when those fans get to riding, all in vain become the countless sore arms of the springtime; quite fruitless then are the rookies, Charley Horses, broken fingers, corns and yes—even some of them may have had hardening of the heels like Rogers Hornsby.

In all there are scores of recruits who may hold on for a week or the entire season. Then goodbye and fare ye well. The men who really make good in a big way such as having their names remembered next spring, may be counted on your right hand.

THE $1,770,000 first prize in the Irish sweepstakes was further tied up yesterday when sweepstake officials were ordered to invest the money pending settlement of the ownership of the ticket drawing the horse Grakle in the Grand National.

THIS action, ordered at Dublin, was taken after countrymen of Emilio Scala, who held the ticket, secured a writ restraining the officials from paying the money to the London cafe owner on the ground that they are part owners. Scala also sold, it is said, a major portion of the ticket to a London syndicate.

IT won't be long until the professional tennis stars are in the same class as pugilists according to a New York report which says that Vincent Richards claims that he is being given the "run around" by Bill Tilden and Karel Kozeluh. Richards has offered to bet $2,500 that he can beat Tilden.

Finnish Lutherans Win Church Crown

Finnish Lutherans Beat First Baptists 26 To 14 To Capture Church "B" Title

Wainio And Honkonen Bring Victory To Lutherans—Very Fine Series

The Finnish Lutherans were crowned king-pins of the "B" Church League basketball last night at the "Y" floor by taking the measure of the First Baptists 26 to 14 in a fast and exciting game. The Lutherans won two out of the three of the recent series and are the deserving champions.

For the first half of the game the Baptists made things interesting for the new champs, by holding them to a 6 to 4 score, but in the second half the Finnish Lutherans came through with a barrage of baskets that put them in the lead for good. Francis Wainio led the attack for the Lutherans with four baskets, two in each half. Honkonen also played a whale of a game for the Lutherans, having two field goals. The Lutherans outscored their opponents 20 to 10 in the final half of the game.

Good On Foul Line.

On the foul line the Lutherans were very good making 10 out of 16 free throws, while the Baptists had but 4 out of 9.

It was a great series all the way through and one of the hardest fought of the Church league for many years. The Baptists and Lutherans played two three game series with the Lutherans taking four games and the Baptists two.

The Lutherans now take their places along with the Temple Israels or Gersons as the Church League champions.

The summary:—

First Baptist 14		Lutherans 26
Eakin	F	Wainio
Wallace	F	Ruha
Whiteman	C	Laurell
Smith	G	A. Mackey
Davis	G	Honkonen

Subs—Theis, Nygard, E. Mackey. Field Goals—Eakin 2, Whiteman 2, Davis, Wainio 4, Ruha, Laurell, Honkonen 2. Fouls—Baptists, 4 out of 9; Lutherans, 10 out of 15. Referee—Jones. Umpire—Uhle.

Freeman-Thompson To Tangle Tonight, Title Is At Stake

Tommy Freeman Meets Young Jack Thompson Tonight In Cleveland Ring

(International News Service)

CLEVELAND, April 14.—The welterweight championship of the world will be at stage again here tonight when Tommy Freeman, titleholder, and Young Jack Thompson, former champion, meet for the second time in seven months for the crown.

Both camps today were predicting victories by knockouts. They were even forecasting a kayo of the champ by the color former champion in the earlier frames of the 15-round go. Freeman, however, seemed to remain the favorite with a majority of the fans.

Tommy wrested the title from Thompson at League park here last September by winning a decision after 15 rounds of furious fighting. It was a loudly disputed decision although popular enough with a majority of the mob.

PACKARD

ASK THE MAN WHO OWNS ONE

If you have long admired and wanted a Packard we can show you how to have one. The chances are that we can prove to you that Packard ownership will cost you no more than it costs you to own your present car—whether it is in the Packard price class or not.

Why do you not take the first step toward Packard ownership? It is an easy step to take and does not obligate you in any way. Just step into our salesrooms—or call us on the phone. We cordially invite you to do either.

If you do, I assure you that you will not be subjected to any annoying sales pressure. That is not our method. But we would like to sit down with you and figure comparative ownership costs—what your car has been costing you and what our records show it would cost you to own a Packard. We will let the figures do the selling! If they show that you cannot have the comfort, the beauty and the distinction of Packard transportation without increased expense you will not be urged to buy.

Even if you own a car costing down to $1500 this message and invitation is directed to you. For while we offer DeLuxe and Individual Custom cars priced from $4285 to over $10,000, we also have eleven Standard models priced down to $2385 at the factory.

And these Standard models are Packards from stem to stern. Big, powerful cars on 126 and 133-inch wheelbases, and built as every Packard is always built—to give truly luxurious and trouble-free service through a very unusually long life.

Of course any Packard may be bought on the payment plan—terms to meet your convenience. We will allow you every dollar your old car is worth and apply its valuation against the down payment on your Packard.

Your Packard is here. Come in and see it today.

Scarazzo Nine To Hold Workout

Scarazzo Baseball Club To Stage Workout Tonight At Centennial Field

Centennial field will be the scene of a number of ball players tonight at 6:30 o'clock when the Scarazzo baseball team will stage a practice in preparation for the opening game of the season which will send the South Siders against the East Side Civics of Youngstown, Ohio at Centennial field on Saturday, April 25.

"Al" Scarazzo, Charles Scaglione and Fred Marcella, officers of the 1930 independent champs predict a successful season. Some of the best players developed in this city will be seen on the roster of the Scarazzo nine. The opening contest on April 25 will give the fans a chance to see just what kind of a team will be entered in the Lawrence County league. The Scarazzos joined the circuit only recently.

The following players are asked to report for the practice tonight at Centennial field; Gennock, Bub Jones, Byak, Orlando, Baker, General, Marino, Shiek, Ross, Scaglione, Fahey, DiThomas, Palus, Torco, Panella or any other player who desires a tryout for this team.

Golf Play Here Is Perking Up

Golf players here have become active though the formal season at the municipal course has not yet been ushered in. During the past week more than 350 enjoyed the pastime. Winter rules are in force now but within a few weeks the turf will be in such condition that the course will be crowded all the time.

Brooklyn Has Best Record Of Any Team In Spring Training Games

AMERICAN LEAGUE TEAMS ARE STRONG

By LES CONKLIN
International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, April 14— The Brooklyn Robins are awarded the championship of the exhibition season that was at an end today with the start of the regular major league schedule.

Although topped in the percentage table by Washington and the Boston Red Sox, the Robins showed more power in winning eight of their eleven games against major league opposition. The Cardinals, with ten victories and four losses against other big league teams, did almost as well.

American League clubs fared better than the teams in the National, rolling up a 636 percentage against a mark of .516 for the clubs in the Heydler loop. In the interleague competition the Junior circuit also had the edge, winning 32 games from National League outfits and losing 29.

Among the strongest clubs, the Athletics and Pirates were the disappointments of the spring season. Both failed to break even.

The Yankees bogged down badly after a flying start, while Detroit has planned an impressive brand of ball in the past ten days. After losing a flock of games to minor league teams, the Tigers hung up six victories in eight starts against major league opposition. Cincinnati also perked up after a slow start.

Volant Snowed Under By East Brook Monday

Overwhelming Score Of 34-0 Registered In First County League Game

Playing their first league contest with Volant Monday evening, East Brook overwhelmed Volant by a score of 34-0. Poor support, coupled with the avalanche of base hits which rung from the bats of the East Brook sluggers was almost a nightmare to Pitcher Steve of Volant.

In spite of the poor support given him, he managed to work heroically against odds and fanned 11 of the hard-hitting East Brook squad.

McMillen and P. Shuller led with the bat for East Brook, McMillen registering five safe swats, including a double, while Shuller had a home run and triple among his four safeties.

East Brook plays Plaingrove on Tuesday evening, having defeated Shenango Hi 12-4 in a non-league contest last week.

The lineup and score follows:

NEW YORK STOCKS

Market Prices Push To Higher Levels Early Today

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, April 14.—Monday's closing rally in the Industrial favorites was carried into the first period today and prices in all sections of the market pushed through to higher levels. Crowding of the shorts in a few of the active shares resulted in an over-night rise of 1 to 3 points, with Johns Manville in the lime-light. The Rails and Utilities went into higher price ground at the opening, but were unable to follow through to any extent.

Speculative interest centered largely on Bethlehem Steel, in view of the stockholders annual meeting at noon in Newark. Prior to the meeting the long-awaited decision of the chancery court relative to the stockholders' suit against the officers' bonus was rendered. It restrained the stockholders from ratifying the operation of the bonus plan, and permitted a vote on the question, the result of which may not be announced until sanctioned by the court, the stock was in good demand above 53, up fractionally, in the early trading, but eased off with the rest of the market in the second hour.

Johns Manville jumped ahead 3½ points to 62 and Auburn Auto repeated its almost daily performance of chalking up a new high record. Today's best price was 295½, up 4 points for the day 184 points above the price of 101½, recorded on January 14. American Tel. & Tel. moved ahead 3 points to 193½, on announcement of first quarter earnings, at $2.51 a share.

Selling by the professionals forced prices lower as the noon period approached. Oils and Electrical Manufacturing stocks, with a few of the theatrical stocks, led the way to the lower levels. Cotton lost about 6 points and call money was in supply at 1½ per cent.

Senate Probers Seek Agreement On Report Draft

May Be Possible That Senate Committee Will Be Given Extension Of Time

OPINION APPEARS SLIGHTLY DIVIDED

Authenticated Sources Report Committee Recommends P. S. C. Dismissal

By WILLIAM B. BROWN
International News Service Staff Correspondent

HARRISBURG, April 14.—With several of the major points of its report still unsettled the Senate judiciary committee today hopes to agree upon the recommendations which it will make concerning the Public Service Commission.

The committee will meet prior to the session of the Senate at 11 o'clock in a final effort to round into shape the results of two months of public hearings. Under the terms of the extension granted the committee it was directed to make its report to the Senate today. Should agreement be impossible an extension of time to complete the report, easily can be obtained.

Burden Shifted

As the report now stands, according to well authenticated leaks from executive sessions, the committee will recommend removal of the entire personnel of the commission, shifting the burden of appointment to the shoulders of the superior court.

Such a course would go far toward silencing the blast which Governor Gifford Pinchot is expected to direct at the committee's report, regardless of its recommendations. It is doubtful that the governor would care to attack the actions of one of the appellate courts.

Appeals from decisions of the commission go directly to the superior court. Should authority of appointment be given the court the commission would then become an arm of the judical rather than the legislative branch of the government.

Should the committee make such a recommendation whatever else it may suggest will be overshadowed by such a drastic proposal. Bills to correct what the committee believes to be defects in the Public Service law have been introduced and three of them sent to the House where they still repose in the committee.

Public Loses Faith

Members of the committee steadfastly have refused to admit that the public hearings substantiated the widespread attacks which the Governor made against the Commission and the political activity of Public Utilities. Nevertheless, they feel, that rightly or wrongly the public has lost faith in the Commission as now constituted and that a very drastic change will restore that body to the respect of that public.

Such a course also would provide a good excuse for refusing to act favorably upon the shattered remnants of the fair rate bill which the Governor has sponsored in the House.

Rachel Rebekahs Install Officers

Enon Valley Rebekah Team Under Mrs. Effie Best Act As Installing Corps

The Rachel Rebekahs met Monday evening at 6:30 for a splendid dinner, with places marked for 75, guests being present from Enon Valley and Sandy Lake. The tables were lovely with their appointments in the lodge colors, pink and green, which were carried out in the flowers which centered the tables.

Concluding dinner the installation of officers was held, with Mrs. Effie Best and her staff of Enon Valley lodge acting as the installing officers.

Those inducted into office included Mrs. Elizabeth Ward, noble grand; Mrs. Sadie Smith, vice noble grand; Mrs. Lucy Pettit and Mrs. Jessie Twaddle, supports to the noble grand; Mrs. Minerva Carr and Mrs. Gardner, supports to the vice; Mrs. Julia Nixon, warden; Mrs. Mary Martin, conductress; Virginia Daly, pianist; Mrs. Margaret Kelso, chaplain; inside guard, Mrs. Mary Bailey; outside guard, Mrs. Sadie Parks; Mrs. Mildred Campbell, chairman social committee, and Mrs. Lucy Pettit, press reporter.

At the next meeting, April 27, a class of candidates will be initiated.
